NEBRASKA SPELLS "SPORTSMANSHIP"

The University of Nebraska is known and respected all over the nation for its red-attired fans, as well as its football teams.

Nebraska fans also have a nationwide reputation for good sportsmanship, at home and away.

"Big League"—that's the way Nebraska teams and fans have acquitted themselves in past seasons, and that's the same goal for 1988.

The University of Nebraska urges all Husker fans to continue this fine tradition of sportsmanship by extending courtesy to the visiting teams and officials.

All of us on the Cornhusker Staff salute our fans as the greatest in the nation and thank you for your support and sportsmanship.

Yours for Nebraska.

Husker Salute . . .

Reggie Cooper was named Nebraska's defensive player of the game last week when he recorded four tackles (three solo) against Kansas State. He broke up one pass, intercepted another, which ended a Wildcat scoring drive in the first quarter, had one tackle for a 6-yard loss and hurried the quarterback causing incomplete passes two times. For the season, the sophomore strong safety leads all defensive backs with 47 tackles and 30 unassisted stops, both rank third among the Husker blackshirts overall. (Above, Cooper puts a move on OSU's Barry Sanders).

Nebraska vs. Missouri

The Scouting Report

by Tom Simons

TODAY: Nebraska returns home from a 48-3 victory at Kansas State last Saturday which assured the Huskers of their 27th consecutive winning season, an NCAA Division I-A record, topping the old mark of 26, which NU had shared with Penn State (1939-64) and Alabama (1958-83). That streak is virtually concurrent with another NCAA record string held by Nebraska—that for consecutive home sellouts, which will reach 160 today. Ironically, Nebraska's record sellout string started against Missouri on Nov. 3, 1962, when 36,501 showed up in pre-expansion Memorial Stadium for a regionally-televised battle of unbeaten. That day, Missouri handed first-year Husker head coach Bob Devaney his first loss at Nebraska 16-7. Eleven years later at Columbia, the Tigers handed Devaney's successor, Tom Osborne, his first loss at the Husker helm, 13-12. Devaney's first year, you'll remember, came on the heels of six-straight losing seasons, including 3-6-1 in 1961, and ended at 9-2-0, at that time the Huskers' best record in 23 years. During the first 26 years of the Devaney-Osborne era, 24 Nebraska teams have won at least nine games, including the last 19 in a row. The closest the Huskers have come to non-winning seasons during the string were back-to-back 6-4-0 campaigns in 1967 and 1968.

THE COACHES: The Huskers' Tom Osborne (Hastings, 1959) is 154-35-2 in 16 years as a head coach, all at Nebraska, and ranks as the second-winningest active coach in the NCAA's Division I-A. Dr. Tom's .812 career winning percentage trails only that of Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, who is 154-27-4 in 16 years for an .843 winning percentage. The Tigers' Woody Widenhofer (Missouri, 1965) is 11-28-1 in his fourth year as a collegiate head coach, all at Missouri. Osborne is 11-4-0 vs. Mizzou, including 3-0-0 vs. Widenhofer-coached teams.

THE SERIES: 82nd meeting in a series that began in 1892. Nebraska leads, 46-32-3, and has won nine-straight from Missouri since a 35-31 Tiger win, in Lincoln in the last regular-season game in 1979, knocked the Huskers out of the national-title picture. The nine-year win string is the longest Nebraska has had vs. Mizzou. It includes a 42-7 win last year at Columbia and a 38-0 win in Lincoln two years ago. The Huskers are 22-14-1 vs. the Tigers in Lincoln, including 18-13-1 in Memorial Stadium.

CLARK NEARS 1,000: Junior I-back Ken Clark rushed for 225 yards and one TD on 20 carries in the win over Kansas State last week, increasing his season total to 962 yards, leaving him just 38 yards shy of becoming the 10th Husker to run over 1,000 yards in a season (including repeat performers, it would be NU's 13th individual 1,000-yard season). Clark earned Big Eight offensive player-of-the-week honors the week before, when he ran for 256 yards vs. Oklahoma State (the second-highest total in school history), and the Kansas State performance made him only the third player in Nebraska annals to have back-to-back 200 yard games. He joins I.M.

Hipp (Indiana and Kansas State in 1977) and Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier (last four games of 1983) in that elite group.

TAYLOR NEARS 2,000: All-America quarterback Steve Taylor comes into today's game with 1,902 career rushing yards, the most ever for a Husker signal-caller and 14th on the all-time list. He has a chance to become the 12th Nebraska player to record 2,000 career rushing yards. With 4,427 career total-offense yards, Steve is fifth on that all-time chart at NU, and needs 857 in his last four games to break the school record of 5,283 set by Jerry Tagge in 1969-70-71. That's an average of 214.3 per game.

HUSKERS TAKE NCAA RUSHING LEAD: After gaining nearly a mile on the ground (1,596 yards) in the last three games, Nebraska has moved ahead of Air Force into the No. 1 spot in rushing offense in NCAA Division I-A stats. Through eight games, the Huskers are rushing at an average of 470.4 yards per game, with the biggest chunk coming from I-back Ken Clark, who has run for 256 and 225 yards the last two weekends. In the process Clark has cracked the Division I-A top 10 in rushing. He's ninth at 120.25 yards per game.

Leading the Tigers . . .

Missouri fullback Tommie Stowers leads the Tigers in rushing through seven games with 417 yards on 89 carries and two touchdowns. He has also caught two passes for 13 yards. The junior from Kansas City, Mo., has 1,280 yards rushing in his career and by the end of the season, could move into Missouri's top ten list for career rushing yards.

D-Rock Searching For Niche Among Great Husker Wingbacks

by Ben Boyle

A 15-minute highlight tape featuring Dana Brinson would no doubt show why he is one of Nebraska's most explosive and dangerous players since former wingbacks Johnny Rodgers and Irving Fryar.

Mentioning those three players in the same sentence comes easy after viewing highlights, but Brinson is the first to tell you that he hasn't matched up with Rodgers and Fryar on paper—as in career statistics.

"College football has been an adjustment for me because I was used to being the center of our offense in high school and making things happen," Brinson said. "I'm a big-play player and I would like to get the ball more, so when it comes my way, I try to make the most of it."

The senior from Valdosta, Ga. has made his share of things happen over the last three seasons, averaging 12 yards every time he touches the ball on a rush, reception or kick return. The Sporting News listed him as its No. 7 all-purpose back in the country in its pre-season issue, but so far he says his senior year hasn't lived up to that billing.

"I strive to become a better player in practice, but in game situations I haven't been called on that much, so I can't really determine how good I really am," Brinson said. "To this date, all the (scouts) can say is 'he is one of the most explosive players and he has the potential . . .'"

Actually, Brinson's stats are similar to the numbers he piled up during his sophomore and junior seasons. In seven games he has carried 17 times for 75 yards, caught 11 passes for 148 yards, returned 14 kickoffs 318 yards and 16 punts 175 yards, including a 75-yard scoring dash against Arizona State. It's just that he was expecting a big senior season, much like Rodgers and Fryar enjoyed.

"Coming into this year I had high expectations," Brinson said. "I know what I can do and everyone around here knows what I can do, but to be honest, it's been kind of frustrating. It's just something I have to deal with."

The only area that Brinson hasn't kept up the pace is on the ground, where he averaged just 4.4 yards per carry, after entering the season with a 7.6 career average.

"One of my frustrations this year is that we haven't been able to shake Dana Brinson on a long play," Tom Osborne said. "He's caught some passes and done some good things on kick returns, but we haven't been able to shake him loose on a running play."

Until that happens, it's not too hard to guess what his favorite part of the game is.

"The highlight of the day for me is punt returns and kickoff returns," he said. "I look forward to those because I figure that's my chance to make something happen."

Brinson has returned three punts for touchdowns in his career, but if there was a "hold your breath, he almost went" category, he would probably lead the nation.

"Even against Oklahoma State, I had a couple of kickoff returns where I had just one man left to beat," he said. "But that's not as frustrating as it seems because I usually get us good field position."

On 14 kickoff returns this season, Brinson has given Nebraska an average field position of the 28-yard line. He has returned five of those past the 30 and Osborne said that field position makes a lot of difference.

"If a team starts on its own 20, their odds of scoring are about one-half of when they start at their 35," Osborne said. "The fan in the stands thinks 'they're at the 35 so what,' but that 10 or 15 yards is critical in terms of field position."

Brinson enters today's game ranked second in the Big Eight and 18th in the country in punt returns with a 10.9 average. He finished seventh nationally in 1986 and one of his goals this season is to lead the nation.

"I'm really not that far behind and with these upcoming games I should have some good opportunities to make my move," he said. "My goals are still very attainable, so I'm just going to keep reaching out for them."

Brinson's versatility has even earned him a nickname—D-Rock, "as in the rock of Prudential, above and beyond," he said.

"I was given the name in high school because I could do a lot of things to get our offense going," he explained. "I never mentioned it when I came here, but during my freshman year McCathorn Clayton started calling me the same thing, D-Rock."

D-Rock has done his share of looking above and beyond and he says his best is yet to come.

"I'm looking forward to a pro career, but for now I just want to be comfortable and do whatever I can to help this team win the Big Eight and get a shot at the national championship," he said. "I'm never going to give up on myself."

Husker fans, likewise, will never abandon their excitement when the ball is in the hands of Husker wingbacks, whether it's Johnny "O-Jet," Fryar "D-Flyer" or Dana "D-Rock."

Brinson's open-field running is just one of the reasons he was ranked as the seventh-best all-purpose back in the nation by The Sporting News.

Chancellor's Club

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln's identity as an academic community of educational excellence with national stature depends upon the quality of our faculty. We all take great pride in the rich tradition of teacher-scholars who for nearly a century and a quarter have stood at the forefront in advancing the knowledge of their respective fields. This tradition of educational excellence continues in a vibrant and vital way with the nationally recognized achievements of present members of the UNL faculty.

It gives me great pleasure to share with you some examples of the national recognition that members of our faculty have received during the past year. For example, during National Higher Education Week in mid-October, Robert Knoll, George Holmes Professor of English, was honored as the 1988 Nebraska Professor of the Year by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education. Dr. Knoll is one of the many gifted teachers at UNL whose enthusiasm and knowledge have inspired generations of students to think more critically and creatively, to acquire new perspectives, and to achieve a better understanding of the importance of being an educated person within a rapidly changing world.

Also honored by their professional organizations and their peers for achieving educational excellence are Paul Burrow, professor of physics and astronomy, who was named a Fellow of the American Physical Society for his outstanding contributions to the advancement of physics through research, and Fred Luthans, George Holmes Professor of Management, who was elected a Fellow of the Decision Sciences Institute for his contributions to management thought and practice.

In addition, Ross Thompson, associate professor of psychology, received the 1988 Boyd McCandless Award from the American Psychological Association, for his research on infancy and early child development. This award is presented annually to the scholar judged to be the outstanding young developmental psychologist in the nation.

In August, Walter Mientka, professor of mathematics and statistics, received a special Certificate of Merit from the Mathematical Association of America for his strong and dedicated leadership of the American Mathematical Competitions which involve 60,000 students nationwide each year. Last month, five UNL political scientists received awards presented by the American Political Science Association. Among these awards, John Hibbing, associate professor of political science, received the Congressional Quarterly Press Award.

In early October, Cecil Steward, dean of the College of Architecture, was elected president of the National Architectural Accrediting Board. In addition, William Walstad, director of the Center for Economic Education at UNL, received the Henry Villard Research Award, the top honor bestowed by the economic education profession.

These nationally recognized individuals typify the way in which UNL faculty as a whole strive to enliven the classroom with excellent teaching, advance their academic disciplines through the discovery of new knowledge, and serve the citizens of this state. Our faculty have built and sustain UNL's reputation as a premier research university. I wish to express a great debt of gratitude to all who have contributed to the development of our talented faculty through endowed professorships, support for pioneering research projects, funding for needed equipment, and the enhancement of UNL's facilities for teaching and research. The investment in people has virtually limitless potential and, on behalf of our University and its outstanding faculty, I thank you for your generosity. The educational excellence of UNL will continue to depend upon your help in our efforts to recruit and retain faculty of the highest quality.

Husker Cornerback Still Having Fun on the Run

by Bill Doleman

When Charles Fryar was growing up in Burlington, N.J., he and his buddies had a simple game plan for his tough neighborhood—run. Not in fear, not from trouble but for fun and maybe a little mischief.

"There were about six of us and we used to walk around in little groups," Fryar recalled. "As soon as we'd see a police officer driving around, we'd just take off running. We hadn't done anything wrong but the next thing you know, they were chasing us.

"Sometimes it seemed like the whole force was after us and when they caught us there was nothing they could do because we hadn't done anything. It never failed and we just had fun."

Coming from the big city, Fryar had already formed his own opinion of Lincoln, Neb., long before a recent population poll dubbed it as one of the nation's most laid-back cities. For the native Easterner, his move to the Midwest was, "just a shock," but a pleasant one.

"I was just a wild guy coming from the city, wanting to be reckless and let whatever happens, happen," he said. "I couldn't do any worse (than the city). This was like heaven out here and I was really enjoying myself."

The only problem for the then-mischievous 18-year-old Fryar was that, "there weren't very many big buildings and alleyways you could run down and around to hide from the police."

Boys will be boys, but it was now time for Fryar to take his games from the streets to the football field. But that's not to say he's had any less fun.

In the Huskers' 63-42 blowout of Oklahoma State two weeks ago, Fryar intercepted a Mike Gundy pass and he was off and running again. This time, with a squad of Cowboys in chase, he returned it 86 yards for a touchdown, the last 10 of which were spent in celebration with fellow defensive back Reggie Cooper as they crossed the goal line. It was a scene that Husker linebacker coach John Melton told fans they would not see again. But according to Fryar, he simply got caught up in the moment and that the NU coaches said little to him about his "high five" with Cooper.

"It was obvious that I was going to score," he said. "It was a big game and I'm not going to get into the endzone too often so when I get a chance to get there, I'm going to do something. I get pretty excited about things like that."

As a freshman, it looked like long touchdowns might become commonplace for Fryar who came to Nebraska looking for glory as a wingback. He once returned a kickoff 105 yards for a score and established himself as a bona fide threat with his ability to run with the ball.

But nothing is forever. Fryar walked on at Nebraska in 1984 and redshirted his first season while making the transition to cornerback. The offensive-minded Fryar has thus spent his career as a Husker punishing receivers and breaking up passes instead of running patterns and scoring touchdowns. Thus far this season he has recorded 20 total tackles giving him 107 for his career and has broken up 17 passes, just shy of the school record of 19 set most recently by Bret Clark, now of the Atlanta Falcons.

"I've found a home on defense," he said. "It's more competitive for me and I like that."

That doesn't necessarily mean old dreams die hard. He is emphatic when he speaks of getting the itch to play offense, maybe just once.

"I always do, always, always," Fryar said. "I look at the games and see where Morgan (Gregory) and Dana (Brinson) are catching a lot of passes and I can't help but think that we would have been an awesome receiving crew."

It's easy to wonder "what if?" had Fryar stayed at wingback and kept up the family tradition started by his cousin Irving, now an NFL all-pro with the New England Patriots. But the question is not one NU secondary coach George Darlington would like to think about. He's happy having Fryar right where he is.

"Charles is our best one-on-one cover man and probably our most experienced defensive back," Darlington said. "He's a good tackler and he's done a good job as a leader this year. He hasn't had that many interceptions, but then a lot of teams don't throw to his side too often."

Which to some might be surprising, given the fact Fryar, at 5-10, would appear to be easy prey for a passing team to feast on. But they haven't, and Fryar said his size has never put him at a disadvantage. Case in point, his lone interception in 1987 occurred when he outleaped Oklahoma State's 6-4 Ronnie Williams in the endzone ending the Cowboys' only serious scoring threat in the Huskers' 35-0 win.

"Basically, a cornerback has to be quick and agile," Fryar explained. "I think my low center of gravity suits the position well. I figure if I'm going against a top-notch receiver, I have to do well against him if I expect to be a top-notch corner. Then people will start noticing me."

They already have. OSU's Hart Lee Dykes, one of the premier receivers in the nation, once said Fryar, "stands out" among the defensive backs he's faced. "He's given me some hard pops. Despite being so small, he still gets the job done."

Just like the days back in New Jersey, his game plan never fails, at least not so far.

"Everything's working out pretty well," he said, "but I still think I can play receiver."

Memories.

Despite his small size and dreams of offensive glory, Charles Fryar has been a big hit in the defensive secondary.

Athletic Director Bob Devaney

Bob Devaney ranks as one of the finest football coaches in college history, after his colorful 16-year career at Wyoming and Nebraska, and now ranks as one of the nation's most outstanding athletic directors.

Devaney is in his 27th year of providing drive, leadership and pride in the Cornhusker athletic program. He arrived in 1962, charged with the mission of building a successful football program, and he succeeded far beyond anyone's expectations. During an 11-year stint as Husker football coach, Devaney's teams won 101, lost only 20 and tied two for a winning percentage of .829. His career mark of 136-30-7 (.806) ranked him as the winningest coach in the nation at the time of his retirement in 1973. Devaney's teams won eight Big Eight titles and two consecutive national championships during the 1962-72 span, with his teams going to nine bowl games. His teams twice won four consecutive Big Eight titles.

Devaney's 1971 team, which posted a 13-0 record and twice played for the national championship (beating Oklahoma, 35-31, in the "Game of the Century," and Alabama, 38-6, in the Orange Bowl), has been hailed as the best college team of all time. Bob was inducted into the National Football Hall of Fame in 1981.

Since becoming athletic director in 1967, Devaney has brought the same success to the overall Husker athletic program that he brought to the football program. Under his leadership, Nebraska annually sets the pace in the Big Eight all-sports race with solid entries in all men's and women's sports.

Under Devaney's guidance, Memorial Stadium has been enlarged, artificial turf has been installed and replaced three times, a stadium office building was constructed, and sports facilities such as the Otto and Gladys Baumann Baseball Complex, Buck Beltzer Baseball Stadium, Ed Weir Track, a new track office building and the women's softball stadium have come into being.

It was Devaney's leadership, working in conjunction with the Nebraska Legislature, that resulted in the passage of a special cigarette tax to provide funds for a new athletic complex, the beautiful basketball arena, indoor track, swimming and other sports building, which opened on the State Fair Grounds in 1976. University of Nebraska Regents recognized Devaney's contributions to that four-and-a-half-acre structure by naming it the Bob Devaney Sports Center in 1978.

Devaney currently spearheads a fund-raising drive to provide the University of Nebraska with a new Faculty-Student Recreation Center, as well as the Cook Pavilion indoor workout facility.

Devaney received many other honors during his coaching career. He was named Coach of the Year by the Walter Camp Foundation, the Football Writers of America, Football News and the Washington TD Club in 1971; and he was tabbed to coach in numerous all-star games, such as the Hula Bowl, Coaches All-American, Blue-Gray and East-West Shrine. He also coached the College All-Stars against the Dallas Cowboys in the 1972 Chicago game.

A graduate of Alma (Michigan) College in 1939, Devaney served as a high school coach at Big Beaver, Keego Harbor, Saginaw and Alpena in Michigan before joining Biggie Munn and Duffy Daugherty at Michigan State. In 1957 he became head coach at Wyoming, where his teams posted a 35-10-5 record.

Devaney is married to the former Phyllis Wiley. They have a son, Mike, and a daughter, Pat, both graduates of the University of Nebraska. Bob and Phyllis also have two grandchildren. □

Tom Osborne: Head Football Coach/ Assistant Athletic Director

Husker Coach Continues as Winner and Leader

Tom Osborne heads into his 16th season as a head coach—all at Nebraska—once again ranked among the "Big Three" of college football.

Osborne takes a remarkable 147-34-2 record into 1988. That makes him No. 3 among the winningest active coaches in Division I-A of the NCAA, and he's just a blink away from the No. 2 spot held by Penn State's legendary Joe Paterno.

While Dr. Tom has long held "legendary" status in Nebraska, his fame is spreading throughout the nation as he continues to build Big Eight powerhouses each fall. During the past 15 years, Osborne's teams all have finished in the Top 10 and all have gone a-bowling, while averaging 10.2 wins per season. No other coach in the 1980s can make that claim.

Osborne's .8087 winning percentage trails only Paterno's mark of .8093 and Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer's .843 among the active coaches in I-A. Since succeeding Hall of Fame coach Bob Devaney in 1973, Tom has won nine or more games in every season.

During the past eight years, his teams have won the national rushing title four times, and have finished second once and third twice. In 1987, Osborne's Huskers were third in national rushing, third in scoring and second in total offense.

With Tom at the helm, Nebraska has run its string of consecutive bowl bids to 19 and its Top-10 streak to 18, both current national records.

Adding even more luster to Osborne's coaching career is the fact that the Cornhuskers have made history by producing three consecutive Outland Trophy winners (Dave Rimington in 1981 and 1982 and Dean Steinkuhler in 1983) and two consecutive Lombardi winners (Rimington in 1982 and Steinkuhler in 1983), while also winning the 1983 Heisman Trophy (Mike Rozier).

During Tom's 15-year career, the Huskers have produced 32 All-America players and 25 Academic All-America players, as well as seven NCAA postgraduate scholarship winners and three National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete recipients.

Only two Osborne-coached teams have finished lower than second in the Big Eight—the 1976 team, which tied for fourth but was only one game out of a first-ever three-way tie for first, and his 1986 10-2 team, which lost to Colorado and Oklahoma. His teams have won or shared in the conference title six times in the past 13 years (1975, 1978, 1981, 1982, 1983 and 1984).

He has three times been named Big Eight coach of the year (1975, 1978 and 1980), and five times been named District VI coach of the year by the American Football Coaches Association and Kodak (1978, 1979, 1980, 1983 and 1987). In addition, in 1978 he was named Bobby Dodds national coach of the year by the Atlanta Quarterback Club and Delta Air Lines for his efforts toward the advancement of the higher and more notable aspects of college coaching. And in 1983 Football News named Osborne national coach of the year.

In 1982 he was the first recipient of the Distinguished Nebraskaland Award from the Nebraskaland Foundation, and in 1983 he was named national coach of the year by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Osborne, who graduated from Hastings College in 1959 before logging pro time with the Washington Redskins and San Francisco 49ers, joined Devaney as an assistant in 1962. In 1965 he received his Ph.D. in educational psychology, then chose football coaching as a career. He coached the Husker receivers and helped build the NU offense into one of the most potent in the nation during the 1970 and 1971 national championship years.

While Osborne was a newcomer to the head coaching ranks in 1973, he was no stranger to Nebraska football. Osborne was a member of Bob Devaney's incomparable staff for 11 years—the last six as a key organizer of a steamroller offense.

During his tenure on the Devaney staff, Osborne headed the passing game strategy and coached the receivers. When Devaney announced his retirement from coaching in favor of full-time athletic director duties following the 1971 season, he named Osborne as his successor. Osborne served as assistant head coach and director of recruiting in Devaney's final campaign in 1972, then took the head coaching reins in 1973.

An outstanding high school athlete at Hastings (Neb.) High School in the mid-1950s, Osborne was named Nebraska prep athlete of the year. Passing up major-college offers, Osborne became a star quarterback and basketball player for Hastings College, where both his father and grandfather had matriculated. At Hastings he played both football and basketball for Coach Tom McLaughlin, who was elected to the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame in 1982. In 1959 Osborne was named state college athlete of the year—the first athlete in Nebraska history to win both the high school and the college honors.

In 1962 he secured a position as a graduate assistant on Bob Devaney's Husker staff. He served in that capacity until he obtained his master's degree in 1963. Continuing his dual role in education and football coaching, Osborne gained his doctorate in 1965 and, holding the academic rank of instructor of educational psychology at Teachers College, was a part-time coach.

Osborne, born Feb. 23, 1937, elected to pursue coaching full-time in 1967 and became the Huskers' receivers coach, a decision that NU fans have applauded since.

Married to the former Nancy Tederman, Osborne is the father of a son, Mike, and two daughters, Ann and Susie. Mike followed in his father's footsteps by playing football at Hastings College, where he was a quarterback. He is now a graduate student. □

University of Nebraska: Innovation and Excellence for America's Future

Two years after acquiring statehood, Nebraska founded the University of Nebraska in Lincoln as both its land-grant institution and its state university. Since 1869 the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) has been a catalyst in Nebraska's development as an imaginative, industrious and ingenious state.

Today the partnership between Nebraska and its university is taking on new dimensions. UNL has redefined and expanded its traditional land-grant role to reflect Nebraska's need for new knowledge in a wide spectrum of rapidly advancing scientific, technological, agricultural and business-related areas.

As Nebraska's major research and most comprehensive undergraduate university, UNL serves as the primary source of new knowledge in the academic disciplines and provides education of the highest quality for future scientists and engineers, as well as for students in the liberal arts and professions. UNL researchers have achieved national stature for doing work in the fields of electro-optical measurements, mass spectrometry, biotechnology, biochemistry, climatology, atomic and solid-state physics, materials science, water quality, agricultural marketing and economics, communication disorders, computer science, political analysis, history and English, among others.

To meet the demands of scholarship and service, UNL has taken an interdisciplinary approach to complex research problems. In recent years the University has established research centers in the areas of productivity and entrepreneurship, franchise studies, engine technology, electro-optical measurements, biotechnology and biochemistry, food processing technology, Great Plains studies and agricultural product development, marketing and utilization.

Informational support for university teaching and research includes a library system with more than two million volumes, an on-campus network of main-frame and personal computers, and participation in MIDNET, a vital link to the National Science Foundation's supercomputer network.

UNL's 1,100-member faculty is one of Nebraska's most vital resources. Nationally respected for their expertise and scholarship, UNL faculty bring to the classroom a commitment to providing the University's 25,000 undergraduate and graduate students with the intellectual skills and the breadth of knowledge they will require as community and professional leaders in this era of accelerated technological and social change.

As a result of a two-year study, UNL has initiated the Program for the Advancement of General Education. Undergraduate programs are being strengthened as curricula are refined to provide a common learning experience for UNL's students. Substantial attention is being focused on the development of skills that a citizen of

We not only give you the money for college.
We also give you the time.

If you think the best way to pay for college is to put it off for a few years and join the military, you're half right.

Because with the New GI Bill, you can join the Army National Guard and earn over $15,000 for college.

But best of all, you serve part-time, as little as two days a month and two weeks a year. Which means you can go to school full-time. Right now. On us.

So the question you have to ask yourself is not, can you afford to go to college.

The question is, can you afford to wait.

the 21st century will require: the ability to communicate verbally and in writing, mathematical competency, computer literacy, facility with languages other than English, sound reasoning capabilities, and the ability to make decisions that are both knowledge- and value-based.

More than 150,000 alumni worldwide have graduated from UNL to become leaders in business, industry, education and the professions.

Over the years alumni such as authors Willa Cather and Mari Sandoz, legal educator Roscoe Pound, anthropologist and author Loren Eiseley, and scientists such as Nobel Prize-winning chemists George Beadle and Donald Cram, inventor Harold "Doc" Edgerton and computer pioneer Jay Forrester have enriched the University's tradition of leadership and scholarly excellence.

Quality instruction is emphasized in UNL's eight undergraduate colleges, in the Graduate School and in the professional graduate College of Law. The Colleges of Agriculture, Architecture, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Engineering and Technology, Home Economics and Journalism and the Teachers College offer more than 130 degree programs leading to career opportunities in the arts, the sciences, the humanities and the professions.

UNL receives more than $30 million annually in grants and contracts from outside sources for research, instruction, public service, administration and student aid.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln reaches thousands of citizens each year through programs conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Division of Continuing Studies. The Cooperative Extension Service provides all Nebraskans with information and assistance in agricultural and natural resources, home economics, family living, 4-H and youth development and community resource development. The Continuing Studies program offers an alternative to formal on-campus education with programs such as summer reading courses, evening classes, independent study by correspondence, telecourses and study tours.

The Lincoln campus is home to the nationally renowned Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery and Sculpture Garden, the University of Nebraska State Museum, the Christlieb Collection of Western Art and the University's championship Big Eight Conference men's and women's athletic teams.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln is an imaginative leader in American education, setting ever higher standards for degrees of excellence. □

NO MORE QUARTERBACKS

Vernon Biever

Paul Hornung made a successful switch from quarterback at Notre Dame to star halfback for Green Bay in the NFL.

It is a malady that has short-circuited many an option quarterback's career.

Take Jack Mildren. He hadn't tackled anyone since high school and suddenly the pride of Norman, Okla., was warding off 250-pound guards on sweeps and trying to stay with wide-outs darting off the line of scrimmage in his first National Football League training camp with the Baltimore Colts in 1972.

What was Mildren doing playing defensive back? Wasn't he the quarterback who directed the University of Oklahoma's Wishbone attack, which ran up 711 yards against Kansas State in 1971? Isn't he the same guy whose school record for total offense in a season (2,018 in 1971) and in a career (4,818) still holds?

As it turned out, Mildren was learning how the other half lived.

"Quarterbacks seem to lead a pampered life," he said recently. "I was shocked to see what the rest of the team did, what others were doing naturally.

"You get used to first class. Now I was in the back of the bus. No more wide-body. It was coach section, standby," Mildren chuckled as he reflected on the change.

"My mind was not a problem. My feet always were."

Though Mildren, the Colts' No. 2 draft choice, became a starter in his second season, he hardly left a mark as a defensive player. He also started for the New England Patriots, with whom he finished his fledgling pro career in 1974.

Mildren took all of eight snaps at quarterback during that first training camp—throwing an interception and completing one pass against the Oakland Raiders in an exhibition game.

"I don't know if I could have played [quarterback]," he said. "As a Wishbone quarterback, it's said you can't play [in the pros] unless someone decides you can. There's no in between."

There are countless reasons why option

quarterbacks don't make the grade in the NFL. They might lack the physical makeup, the arm strength or both. They might not be able to read defenses as well as drop-back passers schooled in a pro-style offense. Option quarterbacks also face a certain prejudice from scouts, who view them with a wary eye.

John Sciarra ran the Wishbone and Veer for two different coaches at UCLA in the mid-'70s, but wound up playing wide receiver in Canada before finishing up with the Philadelphia Eagles in 1978. Rex Kern, who led Ohio State to the national championship as a sophomore and was an All-America his senior year, never quarterbacked the Colts, who still had a fellow named Unitas at the helm.

But others, like Paul Hornung, Nolan Cromwell and Freddie Soloman, who were predominantly running quarterbacks in college, too, were able to make a successful transition into the pro ranks. Hornung, the "Golden Boy," was a Hall of Fame halfback with the great Green Bay Packer teams of the '60s. Cromwell is still going strong in his 12th season as an all-pro safety with the Los Angeles Rams, and Soloman, who retired after the '85 season, was the deep threat in the San Francisco 49ers' arsenal for eight seasons.

What is it, anyway, about quarterbacks that allows them to shift gears?

"The bottom line is you have to be a good athlete," said Horning, who, as a quarterback at Notre Dame in 1956, became the only collegian to win the Heisman Trophy while playing for a losing team. "I made it offensively, but I also played defense. In my day, you grew up as a one-platoon player. Lately, in the last 15 to 20 years, everyone specializes. Nobody realizes how much tougher it was."

Soloman explained that because a quarterback handles the football so much he develops good hand-eye coordination, which makes him a good athlete.

When examining whether a quarterback can make it at another position, look at the "total athletic ability," said Kern. Quickness is a necessary ingredient.

"Bert Jones was a great quarterback. He had a great arm, but I'm not so sure he had great quickness to allow them to change [his] position," Kern said of his former Colt teammate.

The theory goes back further, Cromwell believes. "In high school and college, you want your best athlete at quarterback to run the team and be successful."

Simply being a good enough athlete isn't a prerequisite for switching to, say, flanker or strong safety.

"How tough is he?" Sciarra pointed out. "Does he have the physical tools to play wide receiver or defensive back? You need quickness, speed, good hands, acceleration, explosion. A typical quarterback doesn't have it—he only needs to play quarterback."

Unless it was third-and-25, Mildren seldom threw the ball. He couldn't see himself as a Jim Plunkett. "It was humorous, looking into the mind of a guy playing at Stanford, playing drop-back. I didn't get a whole lot of experience with that."

So, when the Colts drafted him to play defense, Mildren wasn't terribly upset. "Rational minds will tell you that I didn't have many opportunities to throw the ball [at OU], so there was no doubt. The scouts, the people at OU, the newspaper guys knew. I'd have been shocked if someone drafted me as a quarterback. But I was prepared. I always held out that magic . . . that maybe . . . Only maybe didn't turn out."

Kern, who played with Mildren in Baltimore, just wanted to play in the NFL and deemed it a compliment that the Colts would think highly enough of his athletic skills to draft him.

Unlike Mildren, Kern was familiar with defense. He was a two-way standout at quarterback and safety at Lancaster (Ohio) High School. After his junior season at Ohio State, scouts were already casting him as a defensive back or a wide receiver.

"I wasn't really concentrating on that, going into my senior year," he said. "I was trying to win a national championship."

At the '71 Hula Bowl all-star game, Kern shared the spotlight with Heisman Trophy winner Plunkett and Notre Dame's Joe Theismann. When the call went out for defensive backs because of a rash of injuries, Kern volunteered and played nearly three-fourths of the game in the secondary.

Being a quarterback actually became a weapon of sorts. "You know the schemes, the assignments if a wide receiver runs a certain pattern," Kern said. "There was a little more familiarity, and it was actually quicker to pick up and read."

The fact that Kern gained more notoriety for his college exploits than his NFL career doesn't faze him. But he acknowledged that running quarterbacks who didn't fit the NFL's mold had the odds stacked against them.

"I looked at pro football as a vocation, an opportunity to get me into the future," said Kern, who played three-and-a-half seasons with the Colts and half a season with the Buffalo Bills before back surgery shelved him.

"I was just thrilled to be playing. Just give me a uniform and let me play on Sunday. That made me happy."

Knowing he would play every Sunday was great security for Hornung when he joined the Packers in 1957. As a halfback, he immediately became the cornerstone in Vince Lombardi's "three-yards-and-a-cloud-of-dust" offense.

"Luckily, I had the ability, because I couldn't throw the football," said Hornung, who led the Packers to NFL titles in 1961, '62, '65 and '66. "I was more of a running quarterback, and coming from the Split-T, I was limited. [The NFL] was strictly a drop-back game. Running was not in vogue."

Hornung says the best job of switching positions might have been Tom Matte's performance with Baltimore during the tail end of the '65 season. Matte became the Colts' instant quarterback when Unitas, Gary Cuzo and Ed Brown all were sidelined because of injuries. The former Ohio State star guided the team to a 20-17 victory over the Los Angeles Rams in the Western Conference title game and was at the controls the next week in the Colts' sudden-death playoff loss to eventual champion Green Bay.

Cromwell's switch was equally remarkable. A former decathlete at the University of Kansas, he started as a safety before moving in as the Wishbone quarterback in his junior season in 1975 and was named the Big Eight's Player of the Year.

For Cromwell, the mental adjustment to playing quarterback "was the responsibility of putting points on the board, rather than preventing them. You're the one who starts the play and has to step up and show people you can win the game, beat the Oklahomas and the Nebraskas. It's a confidence factor."

Being drafted by a defensive-minded team like the Rams was ultimately a blessing. Cromwell wasn't thrust into the fray, like Mildren and Kern. He learned the ropes from two of the best safeties, Dave Elmendorf and Billy Simpson.

"I had the ability to learn and develop gradually," he said. "I acquired skills, whereas if I was forced, I might have become frustrated. It would have been a detriment."

Sciarra maintained that he was a better passer than he was given credit for, but said scouts usually have a predetermination when they size up option quarterbacks, particularly those who are 5-10, 178 pounds.

"They look at how he looks, how he reads [defenses]. How precise are his passes, does the offense give him enough exposure to learn how to throw the ball."

Sciarra said he would have given anything to play quarterback in the NFL. But when the Chicago Bears drafted him in the third round in 1976, they already had Virgil Carter, Jerry Tagge and rookie Bob Nolan Cromwell's all-around athletic talent has kept him in the NFL for 12 years.

Avellini at the position. When the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League dangled a guaranteed contract to play quarterback, Sciarra fled north.

He started the first two games for the Lions that season, but suffered a bruised ulnar nerve in his throwing arm and lost feeling on the side of his hand. Unable to grip the football, he asked the Lions to put him at wide receiver.

Doubling as a slotback and punt returner, he was the CFL's Rookie of the Year in 1977. He eventually made it to the NFL, signing as a free-agent defensive back and third-string quarterback with the Eagles, and was reunited with his former college coach, Dick Vermeil.

Sciarra said he once played six positions in one game—quarterback, defensive back, running back, kickoff and punt returner and holder for field goals and PATs. The demands on his body and the constraints of playing a new position were great.

"My body was not conditioned," he said. "I was making cuts, catching, turning, running, jumping, as defensive backs do. I had to adjust to dealing with a guy covering me or me covering someone. [The big picture] was easier for me to understand as a quarterback."

The picture was altogether too clear for Soloman. At the University of Tampa (1971-74), the 5-11, 188-pound speedster had established himself as a runner (3,299 yards) and a passer (2,504), but never ran an NFL offense.

Asked whether being black was a factor in that decision, Soloman declined to discuss the subject, saying only, "I could have played quarterback. That's water under the bridge and I don't think about it."

He did offer that he was not what the NFL was looking for. "I wasn't 6-3, didn't have a high percentage passing. All that figures in the grade. I didn't fit the mold."

Soloman endured arduous offseason workouts just to make himself a dependable pass-catcher. He estimated that over the last seven winters he has caught more than 200 passes a day, working out with local players in the Tampa, Fla., area.

It was his way to survive, to make the transformation to a new position. He said the hardest adjustment was being disciplined. As a wide receiver, running accurate routes with the proper depth was paramount. Making the catch was essential.

What it boiled down to for Soloman was playing in the NFL. Playing was his meal ticket. "It was an opportunity to reach the last level of competition—the NFL. As I got there, it was my job. I worked at it. I adjusted to what was valuable to me." □

YEARS FROM NOW YOU MAY HAVE TO REPLACE THE LACES.

Timberlands just seem to get better with age. You see, what makes them wear well is what makes them look good.

We handsew them because no machine can do the job. We make the sides and bottom from one piece of hide to cradle your foot and add a glove soft leather lining to gently coddle it as well.

As time goes by you'll notice that the solid brass eyelets are still in place, and still shining. The leather uppers will certainly have earned some memorable nicks and scars, but the nylon hand stitching will still hold. As will the rawhide laces.

And if some day years from now you have to replace a lace, we hope you won't feel that the new one harms your Timberlands' appearance.

TIPS ON SHOOTING SPORTS

Shooting the Action

Action is what sport is all about. Our memories of the great moments in sports are freeze-frames of action: a tight end leaping for a pass that just touches his fingertips, a quarterback being sacked, a punt being blocked.

As photographers, we want to make those memories permanent by capturing the event on film. It's not always easy, but there are some tips that will help you make memorable action photographs.

The first rule of sports photography, of course, is to know the sport. . . really know it. Before you pick up your camera, you should know what's happening—and what's going to happen—out there on the field. You can't photograph action unless you can anticipate it. As one expert pointed out, if you see it in your viewfinder, it's too late. . . you've lost the shot.

But you could teach Tom Landry a thing or two about football, you say. Fine. . . that's a start. Now you've got to think about the game in photographic terms. Where is the action most likely to take place? Where should you position yourself to have the perfect shot when things start happening? Where is the sun going to be when you start shooting? What's going to be in the background?

Once you've resolved these questions, you're almost ready to start shooting. First, though, you need to control all the variables you can before the action starts. It may be too late to focus when the touchdown pass is in the air, so think about how you want to handle the situation before it happens. If it's bright and you're using a fast film, you can choose a small aperture (like $f/16$ or $f/22$) that will give you great depth of field while still having enough shutter speed to freeze action. Focus in the middle of the area where you think things are going to happen, and then check the depth of field by pressing the preview button. Now you'll be ready when the ball's in the air! (Of course, if you've got an autofocus camera, this kind of anticipation isn't necessary.)

Even owners of autoexposure or program cameras need to think ahead about the proper lens settings. If you've got an aperture-preferred automatic system, in which you select the aperture and the camera picks the proper shutter speed, you may find that the camera's picks are too slow to freeze action. Take a reading on the area before you start shooting, and base your aperture selection on the shutter speed the camera selects. If you've got a shutter-preferred system, chances are you'll freeze the action with your setting, but focus could become a problem because of shallow depth of field. Again, anticipate: take a reading and either select a speed that will give enough depth of field, or be prepared to do some last-second focusing. If you're using a nonautomatic camera, set both shutter speed and aperture early so you won't have to worry about them in the heat of the action.

Play the angles if you want to freeze action. If your subject is coming right at you, speeds as low as $1/125$ can stop the movement, but if your subject is at a 45-degree angle, you may need to go to $1/500$. And if the subject is at right angles to you, $1/1000$ will probably be necessary. There are some tricks you can use if light and film speed don't cooperate. Panning—moving the camera to track a moving subject—lets you get away with a lower shutter speed: $1/60$ is about right. If you're planning to pan, a tripod or a single-legged unipod is almost a necessity. And remember that a panned shot will give you a clear subject but a blurred background. . . not a bad idea, since it just about shouts "speed"!

Long live
American traditions.

Bill Curry became a center because he was the worst player on his eighth-grade team. Roger Shultz will be the starting center for the University of Alabama this fall because he is an exceptional athlete who is intelligent, aggressive and tough.

The game of Curry's youth has undergone major changes to evolve into the game played today by the Curry-coached Crimson Tide, and the position of center has been right in the middle of those shifts.

The center of Curry's era was responsible for snapping the ball and blocking the man directly in front of him. The center of 1988 still snaps the ball, but he may have a different blocking assignment on first, second and third down, and he often is responsible for calling out those blocking assignments. Often he has to face a noseguard who is bigger, stronger, quicker and who can use his hands. The weak need not apply.

Even so, he only becomes the center of attention when there is a fumbled snap, or his number is called for a holding penalty. Until those moments, he is as anonymous as a politician's speechwriter.

Most college football fans can fire off the name of the 1987 Heisman Trophy winner (Notre Dame's Tim Brown), but draw blanks when asked who the consensus All-America center was last fall.

"If you're going to play on the line, you just accept the lack of attention," said Louisiana State University's Nacho Albergamo, who not only was everyone's all-star center in '87, but the captain of the all-name team.

"When you're an offensive lineman, you're playing football because you like the game," he added. "Most linemen don't care about attention, especially once you get to this level."

Albergamo was switched to center before his senior year in high school, since there wasn't much room in college football for a 6-2 guard. "It was probably the best move that ever happened to me," he said. That move probably put him in the National Football League.

Curry was a starting center in the NFL, too, for the Green Bay Packers and Baltimore Colts. But not by his own choosing, as his vivid recollection of that fateful day in the eighth grade shows.

"Our coach was a very hard-nosed, tough guy and one day he took the eighth-graders out and said, 'Tommy, I want you to play quarterback because you have a good arm. Richard, you'll be the fullback because you're tough and you can run hard.' We only had 11 or 12 guys out

MAN IN THE MIDDLE

College in the late '60s because he "wasn't a good enough athlete to be a running back." However, when Morton goes grocery shopping for centers these days, he looks for a person with great athletic ability.

"We've had success with kids who were proven athletes, such as a high school discus thrower or someone who played basketball," Morton said. "He might have been a tight end in high school, as opposed to a big, raw kid who played guard or tackle. We're looking for a kid who has finesse and quickness."

Perhaps a kid like Chuck Lanza, Notre Dame's starting center and senior captain last season. Lanza was moved to center because he was the best athlete among the

The center controls much of the line blocking—he has to ninth-grade offensive linemen at his junior high school in Memphis, Tenn.

"The position's changing," Lanza said. "It's become more of a specialty position on the offensive line. At Notre Dame the center makes an awful lot of the calls dealing with the guards and sometimes the tackles. Communication is the key part of the offensive line, given the defenses you see today. If the center is intelligent enough, he's a real asset in calling the blocking assignments. He's right there in the middle and sees what's going on."

As far as the center's responsibility for a running play, he usually takes on the nose-guard in an odd-front defense or a linebacker in an even front. Sometimes he'll double-team a linebacker with one of the guards, or trap-block on a defensive tackle. On passing plays, the center normally protects an area, watching for any there and finally I was the only one left standing there. Coach said, 'Billy, why don't you be the center.'

"I think in those days that was the way it happened. You put your last guy at center and told him to hike the ball and stay alive."

Today, when Curry goes hunting for centers, he looks for a special type person.

"We want somebody that's really smart and really aggressive," Curry said. "He has to be a versatile athlete because of the variety of defenses and the number of calls he has to make. He has to control much of the line blocking and then has to whip a better athlete, usually a noseguard or middle linebacker. He has to reach-block and block back and pick up blitzers. He has to be a leader."

Curry, who weighed less than 230 pounds when he played for Georgia Tech in the early 1960s, said he does not look for any specific size when recruiting centers. "As far as body type, he's better off if he has short legs than a long torso," he said. "He's better off if he's not built like me. He's got to be able to get under people. Leverage is critical. Strength is critical. He's always at a disadvantage, since he has to hike the ball and still block."

Wisconsin coach Don Morton was a 185-pound center at Division III Augustana blitzing linebackers or a defensive lineman who might get away from a guard or tackle.

In Wisconsin's option attack, center Jerry Butler, who stands 6-3, 270 pounds, will be busier than a traffic cop at Times Square.

"In our base-blocking scheme, our center has to take on the noseguard one-on-one and he has to cut-block," Morton said. "If there is a great player at nose, you find ways within the system to give the center help with a double-team."

The Badgers' center makes all the blocking calls on the line, from identifying where the noseguard has lined up to listening to the tackles' calls, so he knows which man he has to take out.

reach-block, block back and pick up blitzers.

"A center has to be an unselfish person, obviously," Notre Dame's Lanza said. "We don't receive a lot of accolades and we're not hounded by the press. But we get a lot of satisfaction out of seeing an offensive play develop and succeed. We know our work has paid off anytime a back makes a big run or someone rushes for 100 yards. That's where everything starts. If you can't dominate the line of scrimmage, you're not going to win the game."

Albergamo said the evolution of the passing game has made the center's role more important, and Curry agreed.

"The offensive line in general is more cerebral than in the past," said Albergamo, a premed student. "You have to read linebackers inside and out and identify whether a team is overloaded to one side on defense."

Curry said things were much simpler

when he played. "I played against an odd front with a lineman always in front of me, and I could concentrate on one type of blocking," he said. "Now, the center sees much more variety, with odd and even fronts."

Like all positions, there are certain tricks of the trade passed down from one generation to another. But Curry guards his better than the government protects organized crime informers.

"It's not that we're any kind of genius here," he said. "There are special things we can teach simply because I did spend so many years at center."

On the other hand, Morton said there were no secrets he could pass on to his players and the key to solid center play was "to get enough repetitions" in practice.

Many of today's centers have clocked sub-five-second 40-yard dash times, which is a scary thought. But Lanza said it's not how fast you run that's important, but how quick you are off the ball that separates the All-Americans from the also-rans.

"What matters is how fast you can fire off the line of scrimmage," Lanza said. "The battle's won or lost in the first two or three seconds of the block. If you're exceptionally fast and you have good hand quickness, you'll win that battle and dominate." □

All Sessions at the Air Conditioned
Bob Devaney Sports Center

BOYS CAMP I (May 28-June 1)

For boys entering the fifth grade through boys entering their senior year in high school. All campers will be grouped according to their age and ability. Each day of camp will include instruction on individual offensive and defensive techniques, team concepts, and actual game competition.

BOYS TEAM CAMP I: CLASS C2, D1 and D2 SCHOOLS (June 4-8)

This week is for class C2, D1 and D2 schools and only high school age boys can participate. Each school must have a minimum of 6 players (we recommend 8), and a member of the high school's basketball staff will coach the team during the week. Each team will have daily practice situations. There will be lecture periods conducted by the Nebraska Basketball Staff. Each school may bring more than one team and if a school would like to participate in the A, B and C1 Camp, please feel free to do so (we recommend this if you have a talented group of players).

BOYS ELEMENTARY/JR. HIGH DAY CAMP (July 10-13, Grades 4-8)

For boys entering the fourth grade through boys entering the eighth grade. There will be a morning and afternoon session with the noon meal being provided. This is a day camp and each camper must provide for his own lodging. The morning session will begin at 9 a.m. and the afternoon session will end at approximately 3:30 p.m. Instruction will be given on individual offensive and defensive techniques as well as team concepts. Each camper will play 3 or 4 games per day.

SPECIALTY CAMP I: BIG MAN (June 8-10, Grades 8-12)

The Husker Big Man's Camp is designed for the inside player and will concentrate on teaching moves such as the drop step power lunge, up and under move, the baby hook, and the bounce step jumper. In addition, drills to improve agility, foot quickness, and jumping ability will be stressed to improve rebounding technique. Video analysis will be used to assist development of skills.

SPECIALTY CAMP II: SHOOTING (June 15-17, Grades 7-12)

The Husker Shooting Camp will emphasize individual instruction with fundamental skills of shooting. The power lay up, the hook shoot, and the jump shot will be stressed. Fundamental emphasis will be on offensive moves without the basketball, footwork for shooting quickly and efficiently, proper alignment of hand, wrist, and arm, developing of proper arc, increasing range, and shooting off the dribble or off of a screen. Video analysis will be used to assist development of proper shooting technique.

BOYS TEAM CAMP II: CLASS A, B, C1 SCHOOLS (June 18-22)

This week is for Class A, B and C1 schools and only high school age boys can participate. Each school must have a minimum of 6 players (we recommend 8), and a member of the high school's basketball staff will coach the team during the week. There will be lecture periods conducted by the Nebraska Basketball Staff. Each school may bring more than one team and we do allow Class A, B and C1 schools to enter their sophomore or junior varsity teams in our Class C2, D1 and D2 team camp.

BOYS CAMP II: (June 25-29)

For boys entering the fifth grade through boys entering their senior year in high school. All campers will be grouped according to their age and ability. Each day of camp will include instruction on individual offensive and defensive techniques, team concepts, and actual game competition.

ONE CALL DOES IT ALL

Drugs and the Athlete... a losing combination.

Athletes command a unique position in American society and in societies throughout the world. Many view the athlete as a hero who strives for perfection. The public expects excellence, and to achieve these high standards and thereby maintain public favor, the athlete must maintain peak alertness, responsiveness, efficiency and coordination.

A small segment of the athlete population has resorted to the use of drugs (e.g., anabolic steroids, amphetamines and various "street drugs") purported to improve physical performance. The decision to use drugs to improve physical performance, for the most part, has not been based on sound information and could have dire physical consequences for involved individuals. Further, such usage violates NCAA ethical principles.

The ethics of sport need to be emphasized, particularly in that taking drugs to improve performance constitutes cheating. There is need to reemphasize the fact that the important thing in sport is to compete honorably; to win at all costs is a contradiction to the meaning of sport.

The athlete should not carry all the blame for the situation. Coaches, trainers and the medical profession need to share some of this burden, as does the public, for expecting and frequently demanding a winning effort every time.

Society has placed a number of demands upon the athlete. If one believes that athletes and the general public will make sound judgments most of the time when provided with the necessary information, educating athletes and others about drug effects, appropriate drug use and the skills needed to cope with such problems could have substantial benefits to the individual and to society.

The NCAA has produced a pamphlet entitled "Drugs and the Athlete...a losing combination," which includes the latest and best information available on the problem of solving drugs in sports. To order, send $3 for 12 copies to: NCAA Publishing, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

MEN'S SWIMMING

Head Coach: Cal Bentz
Career Record: 86-50, 11 years
Diving Coach: Jeff Huber
Assistant Coaches: Rick Paine, Keith Moore
1987-88 Record: 8-1
Conference Finish: 1st

Quickfact: The Huskers have won nine-straight conference titles and their 10th-place finish at the 1988 NCAA Championships was the best in school history.

The 1987-88 season was unquestionably the most successful in school history. A near-perfect dual season, a ninth-straight Big Eight title and their first Top 10 finish saw the Nebraska men's swim team get a foot in the door with the national elite.

It would be hard to blame head coach Cal Bentz and his Huskers for being greedy. While some teams may be content with taking success one step at a time, Bentz has his team looking to seize the opportunity in order to swim with the best.

"We were very pleased with last season," he said. "To finish in the Top 10 was a great accomplishment for this team but we feel with the talent and experience we have returning, now is the time for us to move even higher."

To do that, Bentz has assembled some of the nation's best swimmers in the Cornhusker camp as they look to challenge the traditional powers again this season.

Leading the way for the Nebraska swimmers are sophomore Peter Williams, the world record holder in the 50-meter freestyle, and senior Mike Irvin, a three-time All-American in the individual medley. All-American divers Lewis Meyers and Lawrence Roddick, a U.S. National Team member, provide coach Jeff Huber and the Huskers with one of the most talented duos in the country. In all, the Huskers return 12 athletes with NCAA meet experience and honors to the 1988-89 edition.

The Huskers will have a chance to showcase their talent at home when they host one of the most unique meets ever held in the United States, Dec. 1. Prior to the Husker Invitational, five of the nation's Top 10 teams from a year ago will battle in a meet featuring sprint races only. Included in the field are Nebraska, UCLA, Michigan, Southern Methodist and defending national champion Texas.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING

Head Coach: Ray Huppert
Career Record: 84-40, 13 years
Assistant Coach: Kelly Nordell
1987-88 Record: 7-2
Conference Finish: 2nd

Quickfact: The Huskers have won eight-straight dual meets at the Bob Devaney Sports Center.

After losing their hold on the Big Eight championship last season, it may seem as though the Nebraska women's swim team has backed itself into a corner. In recent years, the Huskers have enjoyed conference supremacy and national respect with three Big Eight titles and Top 20 rankings.

Last year, however, not only did Kansas take home the conference title, the Huskers finished a dismal 39th at the NCAA Championships.

For head coach Ray Huppert and his team, it's time to come out a-fightin'. And that, he says, is what they intend to do.

"This is an important year for us," Huppert said. "We have to go out and prove to everybody and to ourselves that we are a much better team than we showed at the end of last season."

In all fairness, the Huskers have sported one of the youngest teams in the nation the past two seasons and last year saw injuries slow the lineup second semester. Now as he looks at the 1988-89 season, Huppert is as optimistic as ever about avoiding a repeat and bringing Nebraska back into national prominence.

"I really think that this year's team has as much talent as any team that we've ever had at Nebraska," he said. "We have people who have been in the program and have gotten a tremendous amount of experience. Now they are showing the desire and determination to become even better both individually and as a team."

Among the athletes returning this season include Big Eight champions Carole Johnson, Terri Long, Mindy Matheny and diver Julie May.

Scoring isn't the only thing to Kroeker

by Jennifer Snyder

After high school graduation, in 1984, who was the nation's second all-time leading scorer in prep football history?

If you said Steve Taylor, Keith Jones or Marcus Allen, you're wrong.

Maybe this will help you decide . . . who scored a mere 672 points during his high school career?

Well, it wasn't Mike Rozier, Irving Fryar or Herschel Walker.

It is a guy who hasn't scored a single point during his college career. In fact he rarely touches the ball but when he does, it's always important.

If you haven't figured it out by now, punter John Kroeker, a senior from Henderson, Neb., held that honor and four years later, he still ranks as one of the top ten prep scoring leaders.

Going from a top scorer on a team to one who has a minimal affect on the outcome of the game wasn't an easy adjustment for Kroeker. But, he accepted his newfound role—even- tually.

"When I was recruited, it was mainly as a punter but I thought I could do a lot of other things. In fact, I planned on it," says Kroeker. "I played split end the first two years I was here.

"Then one day at practice, Coach Osborne told me they didn't have any other punters. He told be to 'go ahead and play split end but don't get hurt.' I decided at that point and time that being a punter was my role on the team."

But Kroeker could have played other positions. The 1984 Nebraska Prep Athlete of the Year, he was also a Class C-2 all-state selection at three positions (I-back, punter and place kicker). During his senior season, he rushed for 1,895 yards, 42 touchdowns, connected on 5 of 7 field goal attempts and held a 46.8 yards/punt average. He led Henderson High School to three state championships—two in football and one in basketball.

So, why is this guy punting instead of scoring? According to Kroeker, a punter has a very important role on the team. "I try to keep the opponents in poor field position because field position can sometimes be the difference between winning and losing. The coaches stress the importance of the kicking game so I just try to do my part."

Kroeker also realizes that a punter is not the most glamorous position on the team. "No one likes to see the punter on the field because that means the offense is not doing its job. I just try to do the best I can to keep the other team in poor field position."

Not practicing with the team, it is hard to feel a part of the group at times. The kickers practice while the rest of the team are at meetings. When the rest of the team comes out to practice, the kickers are just finishing up. Kroeker is still friends with everyone on the team and he sees himself helping the team in other ways. A punter can motivate and support other team members.

"Being a neutral party, not necessarily on offense or defense, can help me be more objective. I can take a look at the team and see who needs help. I try to give encouragement to someone who is really down or I pat someone on the back when they do a good job."

Kroeker began his final season as the number one punter, a position he has held for the last three years. Having pretty good seasons in 1986 and 1987, Kroeker is steadily raising his punting average. At the end of the 1987 season, he was at the height of his college career. In the last two regular-season games (Oklahoma and Colorado), he had an average of 44.8 on 12 punts, which was nearly five yards better than his season average.

Being the number one punter for three years is something Kroeker is proud of. Not too many players get the opportunity to be a vital part of the Husker program. That became a reality to Kroeker before the UCLA game on Sept. 10.

"UCLA is one of the few grass fields we play on," says Kroeker. "A couple of us were talking before the game and someone made the comment about how nice the grass was. I said I would rather play on the grass at South Carolina. They looked at me and I realized most of them made the trip but didn't get to play in the game.

"I realized how fortunate I have been to be able to start three years at Nebraska. That is an accomplishment I can be proud of."

Kroeker has accepted his silent role. Making the decision to be the punter and not be in the limelight was his own. He believes he made the right choice.

"I think the other guys on the team are jealous of me. Everyone on the team wants to be a punter or a kicker," jokes Kroeker. "But seriously, it has been quite a privilege and honor to play for Nebraska. I have played a lesser role but being a punter is an important part of the team. I set my priorities straight and accepted my role."

In one of his two appearances for the day, senior punter John Kroeker boots his way to a 41.0 average against Utah State earlier this season.

"I found a way to get better performance."

When I drive, I want my car to perform. That's why I fill it with Super Unleaded with Ethanol.

The higher octane gives me better starts and quicker acceleration. No knocks. No pings. Just flat-out performance.

Driving is just no fun if your car doesn't run right. A tankful of Super Unleaded with Ethanol makes an engine purr. And helps my car perform.

Maybe it's time you had one for your telecommunications system.

Imagine what it would look like if a football team decided to "wing it" out there on the field without a game plan. It would look pretty silly, wouldn't it?

Well, that's exactly what many companies do when it comes to planning and designing telecommunications systems. The results are costly.

That's where we come in to play. You see, we can show you the most cost effective way to handle your information. No matter how unusual your needs are. In fact, we're the telecommunications consultant to the Super Bowl and a number of NFL teams. We provide dozens of communication systems that enable the press to get their stories out, spotters to talk with their coaches, and stadium security to talk to each other.

If we can do all that, just think of what we can do for you.

Isn't it time you had a game plan for your telecommunications system? Get in touch with us. Your GTE Account Manager will be glad to help you draw one up.

Nebraska Union in 1938

“A Tradition of Service” Nebraska Union Turns 50

The University of Nebraska–Lincoln (UNL) Student Union is 50 years old this year. To commemorate the anniversary, a number of special activities have been held in the traditional gathering place for UNL students throughout the years.

“1938-88, Continuing a Tradition of Service to UNL,” is the theme of the celebration, which opened with a 50th anniversary party Monday afternoon in the main lounge of the Union. On Tuesday, there was a “Win, Lose or Draw” tournament in which three-member teams drew pictures and tried to guess what pictures drawn by other teams represented. The event was co-sponsored by Radio Station KFRX and the Nebraska Union Board.

On Wednesday, Adrian Cronauer, the personality whose work in Vietnam during the 1960’s inspired the hit film “Good Morning Vietnam,” was a guest speaker in the Union. The University Program Council’s Concerts and Coffeehouses Committee and the Nebraska Union Board sponsored entertainment Thursday afternoon in the Union Crib.

long celebration, with the Union once again open for the enjoyment of all after the game.

The Union was built with a $180,000 grant from the Public Works Administration (PWA) of President Roosevelt's "New Deal" era. University students also agreed to pay a $13 fee toward construction costs, and the Alumni Association launched a fund raising drive to pay for furnishings. Among the donations received was a $50 check from Karl Ulmanis, who was then the president of Lativa and a 1909 alumnus.

The ballroom was a key feature of the new building, and Orrin Tucker's 12-piece orchestra provided music for the open house dance when the building opened in May, 1938. The Union also provided offices for student organizations, publications and the alumni center.

The mortgage for the original building was "burned" in 1952. Since then, there have been two additions to the $400,000 Georgian-style structure.

The first, in 1959, extended the building to the north, starting with the area which now includes the Burger King. This addition also provided outdoor patios for the building. The last addition, in 1968, enclosed the patios. A second floor was added above the main lounge, extending the north entry, adding the current Centennial room and upper level offices to the structure.

In a renovation several years ago, a 10-lane bowling alley and recreation room in the lower level were removed to accommodate the new bookstore.

Coached by Francis Allen, 1988 Midwest region Coach-of-the-Year, the Nebraska men's gymnastic team captured their sixth NCAA title last April at the Bob Devaney Sports Center. Big Eight Conference champs as well, the Huskers will defend both titles this season.

As Nebraska plays host to the NCAA Championships in April, four returning All-America performers, Mike Epperson, Patrick Kirksey, Bob Stelter and Mark Warburton, plus freshman Lance Ringnald, a member of the 1988 olympic team, will lead the Huskers.

The 1988 Big Eight champion Cornhuskers look to defend their conference title this season, as well as plan for their third-consecutive NCAA Championship bid. Coached by Rick Walton, the 1988 women's gymnastics Big Eight Coach-of-the-Year, the team will be led by seniors Crystal Savage and Jeaneane Smith.

About the Yell Squad . . . The University of Nebraska Yell Squad's primary goal is to function as public relations personnel for the University along with promoting spirit and support for Cornhusker athletic events. During an academic year, yell squad members make approximately 100 appearances at athletic, philanthropic, community and state events. As full time students, members of the yell squad condition and practice 10-20 hours a week. Yell squad members excel as leaders in campus and community organizations and activities while maintaining high scholastic standards.

Yell Squad Honors . . .

1984-1985

1985-1986

1987-1988

Finalist as one of the Top 20 cheerleading squads in the National Cheerleaders Association College Cheerleading Championships.

1986-87

4th place regional award winner in the Universal Cheerleading Association Cheerleading Championships.

Thanks For Your Support . . . The UNL Yell Squad would like to thank the following businesses and individuals for their support of the Yell Squad by providing financial assistance for Cheerleading Camp in the summer. If you would like information about the Yell Squad or are interested in contributing, please contact: Kris Baack, 253 J Barkley Memorial Center, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, NE 68583-0731

You Make The Call.

O.K. Here's the situation: Early in the fourth quarter, with Nebraska up by three touchdowns and looking like a Red Steamroller, a fan stands up from his assigned seat. He decides to get a jump on the crowd and leaves the game to go to Tony & Luigi's. Did he make the right decision?

Now you make the call!

The answer after this logo.

Sensational Italian Food — Seasoned With Fun.

The Big Tomato Rule Book states that "it is acceptable fan behavior to leave a lopsided game early only for a unique dining experience." If you said "yes," you made the right call!

Take a time-out.

Before the next Cornhusker football game, take a time-out at Nebraska Bookstore. Lincoln's finest selection of Big Red clothing and gifts is located just a few blocks from Memorial Stadium at 13th & 'Q' Streets. You'll score extra points with family and friends when you bring home Nebraska sweats, T-shirts, posters and more. We feature brands like JanSport, Champion and ACI/Russell. Don't have time to shop? Stop in for a copy of the "Original" 1988 Big Red Collection catalog and order by mail. Or just drop us your name and address and we'll send you a FREE copy! It's loaded with lots of sportswear and great gift ideas. Take a time-out today and discover the Big Red world of Nebraska Bookstore.

More than ever,
more than a Bookstore.

1988 NEBRASKA CROSS COUNTRY

MEN

Head Coach: Jay Dirksen (South Dakota State '68)
Assistant Coach: David Harris (Northeast Missouri State '78)
1987 Big Eight Finish: 2nd
1987 NCAA Finish: 13th
Quickfact: The Husker's 13th-place finish at last year's NCAA Championships was the best in school history. Sophomore Joe Kirby, the third freshman finisher at the national meet, is the Huskers' top returnee after placing 51st.

WOMEN

Head Coach: Jay Dirksen (South Dakota State '68)
Assistant Coach: David Harris (Northeast Missouri State '78)
1987 Big Eight Finish: 2nd
1987 NCAA Finish: No Full Team; Sammie Resh placed 29th individually (21st American)
Quickfact: Resh became the first NU woman in history to earn All-America honors in cross country with her performance. Nebraska placed three runners in the top nine at the Big Eight meet led by Resh (2nd), Juliet Prowse (5th) and Michele Marthaler (9th). All three return this season.

Some fans go to great lengths to see the Huskers.

Some Nebraska football fans drive the length of the state to watch the Huskers play. When they come, they're probably listening to KRVN Radio.

They listen to KRVN for up-to-the-minute news and farm reports, weather and road conditions and easy listening country music. On those game days when they can't make the game, they listen to it on KRVN.

To be your best in Nebraska you've got to know the turf.

That's especially true in banking. That's why First Commerce Bancshares takes such pride in the deep roots it has across Nebraska. Each First Commerce Company is locally directed and managed by people who know the needs of the area they serve. Yet each company can draw on the strength and resources of one of Nebraska's strongest financial organizations.

Together the men and women at First Commerce Bancshares are dedicated to seeing Nebraskans win on every playing field.

Cornhusker Wheel Club 1988

Automobile dealers in Nebraska are contributing a large measure of help to the University of Nebraska athletic program through the loan of courtesy cars. Like other programs which are a part of the Cornhusker booster group activities, this project enables the Nebraska Athletic Department to make greater use of its funds.

These sports-minded dealers around the state have earned a debt of gratitude from the University of Nebraska Athletic Department. They are an important part of the "team" that includes players, coaches, administration, faculty, staff, students, alumni, Husker Educational Award group, Touchdown Club, Extra Point Club, Beef Club and the courtesy car program.

but the party is just beginning.

You may not be cheering for the same side during the game.
But you'll agree you came to the right place afterward.
Join us. We're the pros in our league.

Brittany's Grand Edibles and Spirits. 227 No. 9th. 476-3020. Just 3 blocks south of the stadium on 9th Street. Quality entrees, sandwiches, soups and salads for lunch or dinner. American and European cuisine for evening dinner on the Parlour Level. Brittany's is the place to be!

Chi-Chi's. 201 No. 66th Street. 464-8281. Come enjoy the good taste and good time of America's incredible Mexican Restaurant. Come enjoy the full, fresh flavors of Chi-Chi's special chips, dips, and dishes—a variety of light or hearty meals spiced the way you like them.

Grisanti's Casual Italian Restaurant. 6820 "O" Street. 464-8444. Combines an atmosphere that's comfortably casual with delicious dishes from all over Italy. Choose from our classic Lasagne, Manicotti Marinara, Ravioli, Chicken Tetrazzina, Fettuccine Alfredo or Veal Marsala to name a few. Kids welcome, too!

Jax Shack Restaurant & Lounge. 27th and Woods Blvd. (Bishop Heights Shopping Center). 423-0166. Enjoy the best of everything in a friendly, casual atmosphere. Full menu featuring Nebraska beef and seafood. Extensive wine list.

Julio's. 132 So. 13th St. 477-5122. Just south of 13th & "O" St. Enjoy our Tex-Mex food or our selection of gourmet burgers. Our specialties are fantastic margaritas and award-winning nachos! Featuring live Jazz on Thursday nights. It's THE place to eat, drink and celebrate before and after the game. Julio's . . . it's cookin'!

Kerrey's. 201 Sun Valley Blvd. (minutes from downtown). 475-3677. Enjoy our selection of premier Nebraska steaks or chicken or seafood items. Lincoln's award winning restaurants offer the best service in the city! Open 11AM to 1AM, 7 days a week, with over 75 HOMEMADE menu items.

Misty's. 6235 Havelock Ave. 466-8424; 56th & Highway 2. 423-2288. Serving the Midwest's finest prime rib for lunch and dinner. We also offer steaks, seafood and selected entrees to suit other tastes. Open six days a week and Sunday 5pm to 10pm. A Nebraska football tradition.

The Renaissance at the Cornhusker Hotel. 333 South 13th Street. Lincoln's premier dining experience for dinner. The menu and prices will keep you cheering long after the game. Visit The Five Reasons lounge for cocktails and conversation before or after dinner. Dinner reservations are suggested. 474-7474.

Spike & Olly's. 52nd & "O". 464-6862. Lincoln's unique gathering place—plants, brass, copper, antiques, mirrors, raspberry walls, sky lights, stone floors. The food is outrageously good, from Continental Cuisine, Deli Sandwiches, Espresso & Pastry and everything in between.

Tony and Luigi's. 5140 "O" Street. 466-2351. The Big Tomato Rulebook states that "it is appropriate fan behavior to 're-live' the game and analyze key plays at Tony & Luigi's." Enjoy sensational Italian and American food . . . seasoned with fun! Live entertainment in The Big Tomato Bar on Friday and Saturday nights. A tradition in Lincoln for over 43 years.

Wolfies. 1235 "Q" Street. 476-3015. Lincoln's finest baby back ribs, authentic sizzlin' fajitas, gourmet burgers, sandwiches, appetizers and more. Your favorite drink from our bar.

A few reasons we make more than one car.

No two people are the same. Everybody expects something different from their car or truck.

That's why Nissan offers lots of different models. With hundreds of different color and body-style combinations. And thousands of equipment options.

From the economical Sentra™ To the famous high-performance 300ZX. To the rugged Hardbody™ trucks. To the revolutionary 4x4 Pathfinder®.

Yet, as different as each may be, they all have one very important thing in common. Every Nissan is a pleasure to own and drive. Because at Nissan, we never forget why we build cars and trucks.

Or, who we build them for.

LOCKER ROOM ORATORY:

MYTH OR MOTIVATOR?

Not even the real Knute Rockne (inset) could equal Knute Rockne's (Pat O'Brien's) locker room speech in "Knute Rockne, All American."

The scene endures in the mind's eye of every fan from Berkeley to Buffalo as the stuff of legend, but it is more a charming myth. At its focal point is the impassioned locker room half-time speech, delivered by an eloquent head coach whose words rouse his weary underdogs to greatness in a magnificent comeback victory awash with emotion.

The enduring idea that locker room oratory can inspire a college football team beyond its talent probably can be attributed to Pat O'Brien, the actor who starred in the title role of the 1940 film "Knute Rockne, All American." (The actor who was featured in the role of George Gipp in this memorable biopic has since found another line of work.)

Save for occasional instruction, say, in the art of tackling, O'Brien's Rockne made verbal inspiration the heart and soul of his coaching, and rhetoric the stuff of every game plan. In the process, he forever cast in stone the notion that no matter the difference in size, speed and talent, no contest is beyond the reach of an articulate coach who knows how to kindle team emotion with words.

Indeed, the movie gave life to the most famous locker room slogan of all time—one instantly remembered by anyone who has ever heard of football, big business or politics—"Win one for the Gipper."

Legend has it that the saying was the deathbed request preceding Gipp's untimely demise in 1920 and that, eight years later, Rockne repeated the words to the Fighting Irish, who just happened to be

"... If we must slaughter, let us slaughter our oppressors! If we must die, let it be under the clear sky, by the bright waters, in noble, honorable battle. Whaddya say, men, let's go chew up those Harvards."

Herman Hickman

trailing Army at the time.

Critics have quibbled about the authenticity of it all, but as Rockne told his team—on the only occasion he reportedly ever made reference to Gipp—his former player allegedly said:

"Some time when things are going wrong, when the breaks are beating the boys, tell them to go in and win one for the Gipper. I don't know where I'll be, but I'll know about it and I'll be happy."

Notre Dame rallied to win that day, of course, and one account of the game describes an Irish halfback bolting into the Army end zone, tears streaming down his face, yelling, "There's one for the Gipper!"

The history of college football is shot through with other marvelous examples of the catchy slogan, the one-liner, words used to great emotional effect, words used in love and humor, words that have helped achieve victory—almost refuting the game's hoariest cliché, "I can't comment on that until I've seen the films."

One of the all-time best was uttered at Yale by T.A.D. Jones, the Bulldogs' coach who extracted 60 victories in 79 games during the 1916-17 and 1920-27 seasons. Jones is best remembered for having once sent his team out to play the most important contest on its schedule with the riveting challenge:

"Gentlemen, you are about to play football for Yale against Harvard. Never in your lives will you do anything so important."

Several seasons later at New Haven, when Yale's football mentor was the implausible and rollicking Herman Hickman, an Elis practice was prefaced with send-off lines from "Spartacus to the Gladiators," recited in the corn-pone dialect of Hickman's native Tennessee:

"Is Sparta dead? Is the old Grecian spirit frozen in your veins that you do crouch and cower like a belabored hound beneath his master's lash? O comrades, warriors, Thracians. If we must fight, let us fight for ourselves. If we must slaughter, let us slaughter our oppressors! If we must die, let it be under the clear sky, by the bright waters, in noble, honorable battle."

Hickman then added, "Whaddya say, men, let's go chew up those Harvards."

John McKay similarly scored one for perspective at Southern California when, on the eve of the Trojans' nationally riveting battle with Notre Dame, he said:

"It's an immense game, all right, but keep in mind that there are 600 million Chinese who don't give a damn whether we win or lose."

But the football locker room of today has become more seminar than sermon, and the fiery rhetoric of yesteryear—if, indeed, it ever was so prominent a halftime phenomenon—rarely attends the study session of a modern-day intermission.

"I've always found the popular idea that a coach gives a fire and brimstone speech like 'Win One for the Gipper' doesn't work," said Jackie Sherrill of Texas A&M. "Reality sets in as soon as a player steps on the field and gets 'slobber-knocked' by somebody."

"Two years ago," Sherrill added, "they made a lot of money teaching [business] people how to improve through motivational seminars. But in later studies, they found that [the effect] only lasted 14 days and then you were back to your own self. It's the same in football. Whatever is said in the locker room, if it's not deep-seated, within five minutes it's over anyway."

Lou Holtz, who may be Rockne's football descendant at Notre Dame, expressed sentiments more in tune with Sherrill's.

"I think how well you prepare for a game all week is more important than something you might hear on the day of the game," said Holtz. Speaking from the player's viewpoint, he added, "Say you get all pepped up. You go out on the field and a guy drills you in the sternum, you can't remember anything that was said."

"If a pep talk is effective, I don't know," said Holtz. "I don't use it. I simply cover two things: why we want to win and what we have to do to win."

Don James, the head coach of the Washington Huskies, holds to the viewpoint that a team's emotional bent is shaped throughout the practice week, rather than at the last moment on Saturday afternoon.

"We start the psychological part of our game on Monday," said James.

"Then on Thursday I put it into a working position. That's when I take over the team. On Saturday they just feed on that briefly before we go out on the field for our warm-ups. Right before we send the players out again, I'll try to hit on two or three points, four at the most. Then you send them out through the tunnel and they probably forget everything you've said."

"We take the approach that we're trying to help the players, rather than scream and holler," James added. "I think the key thing is, if you wait for game day to get motivated, it's too late. It's like Lee Trevino once said, 'If you haven't brought it with you, you ain't gonna get it.' If they haven't worked hard all week, they're not going to play well, no matter what you say as a coach. If you wait for that fire, it will go out really quick."

Bruce Arians of Temple cast another vote for the calm, cool, collected approach.

"I think halftime is more where the fire and brimstone is laid down," said Arians. "Prior to a game, I want our players going out levelheaded. I don't want them leaving the locker room jumping up and down, because it's too steep a cliff and too great a fall, if they make a mistake. I'd rather have them playing at high intensity."

Arians is one coach who has no reservations about getting help from the prop department.

"My first year here, we had a full-length mirror," said Arians. "Each guy looked himself in the eye. Before and after the game. He had to answer to himself whether he gave everything he had. That worked pretty good. Now we have that mirror right at the locker room door, where our players see it every day of practice."

Arians is also convinced that today's football players can be motivated by education, from whatever direction.

"I think they still can rally," said Arians. "And sometimes the kids can do it better than you can. Someone will say a phrase that will catch on like fire. A couple years ago, one of our defensive backs got up and said, 'We gotta be tight as a fist, so no fingers can point in any direction.' That probably stayed with us for three ball games. It wasn't the coach as much as the players who got guys foaming at the mouth."

Sherrill, who, like Arians, spent his formative coaching years on Bear Bryant's staff at Alabama, said, "I think it's important how you conduct yourself. You've got to keep your players loose and relaxed, but the concentration has gotta be there too. We don't say a lot. . . . I will meet with them right before we go on the field and go over what we've talked about that week. What we have to do to win. We've been fortunate here. We've been behind 14 times the last three years and have come back to win each of them."

Sherrill also cited one occasion when, as an assistant at Syracuse, he used a rather novel psychological approach.

"I had made a lot of changes," Sherrill explained, "so many that another assistant came to me and said, 'Coach, you just cost us a game. Now the kids are completely confused.' He was probably right. I didn't know what to do."

"So the next morning I went up before the meeting and took all the screws out of the blackboard, to make it flimsy," Sherrill said. "At the meeting later, I didn't say very much, I just took two or three steps and kicked that blackboard all to pieces and said, 'It's time to play!' It worked."

Whatever esteem a coach may have for oratory, the hardest time for any team's collective psyche occurs in those agonizing moments before it takes the field for the opening kickoff. It demands some reaction or some humor from the coach to take some of the tension out of the moment.

"Before they go out," said James, "that pregame period is an awful time. If you can see guys just sweating, grim, they can give you a pretty good read. If the game is too large, you try to say things to calm them down. Like, 'You guys have done this before. It's gonna be fun.' I'm not much on storytelling."

Neither James nor Arians has ever delegated that time to an alumnus or ex-player, for the purpose of talking to the squad. Sherrill and Holtz occasionally conscript a former player for that duty, and both men favor pregame statements from members of the clergy.

"I believe a game is an extension of practice," said Arians. "They have to hear the same voice they're used to hearing."

"I have different people come in and talk to the squad," said Sherrill.

"Usually I pick someone of the cloth, or maybe a former player. Someone with identity but also an inner identity. Players do have strong feelings about that. I have people like Roger Staubach, but I really don't bring anyone around the day of the game, into the locker room, unless I feel they have some convictions and strong feelings to which the players would respond. These people who jump up and rant, rave and holler can ruin something you've worked on all week."

Arians cited an occasion when humor was used to defuse tension, through the capable handiwork of Bear Bryant.

"We were getting ready to play Penn State the year they had the national championship," Arians said. "The tension was so noticeable you could feel it; you could cut the stress with a knife at that pregame breakfast. Sitting there eating his cereal, Coach Bryant sensed it. So he suddenly got up and blasted everyone, saying it was a sorry day that Alabama didn't have any class anymore, for not wearing ties to the pregame meal. Pretty soon, guys were flying out the door, coaches and players, saying, 'We need ties.'

USC Coach John McKay made sure his Trojans kept important games in perspective.

"All the guys were well-dressed," said Arians, "but some of them were wearing golf shirts, and the ties they came back with were something to see, stripes on polka-dots, polka-dots on stripes. Some of them even got the waiters' black bow ties. But everybody got one somehow, and when we finished, the guys were laughing at what they looked like."

"Then Coach Bryant gave his talk. Very mellow. All the tension was gone. When he left, we all busted up laughing. And later we went out and played great, and won the game."

And the thing that made it a psychological masterstroke?

"We hadn't worn ties at Alabama in about eight years," said Arians. □

TO A RADAR GUN THEY LOOK EXACTLY ALIKE.

Forget the fact that the car on the left is a legendary performance car. And that the one on the right is a wagon.

A radar gun doesn't notice minor details like that. It focuses on only one thing: speed.

And from that point of view, the Porsche 944 and the Volvo 740 Turbo Wagon look remarkably similar.

In fact, in repeated quarter-mile tests, they came up with virtually identical numbers—both in elapsed time and miles-per-hour. In 0-60 tests, the Volvo wagon actually came out ahead of the Porsche.* Which is no small feat for any car, much less a wagon.

It's no wonder Road & Track magazine called the 740 Turbo Wagon the closest thing to a five-door sports car.

Which all goes to prove that the Volvo 740 Turbo Wagon is something very rare indeed:

A wagon that's actually worth owning for what it packs up front.

TEAMS WITH AN AXE TO GRIND

by Bob Hammel,
(Bloomington, Ind.) Herald-Telephone

California and Stanford do not understate to the outside world just how intense their football rivalry is. They call their annual season-closer the Big Game. Period.

This game is for one year's possession of an axe. That didn't happen routinely, either.

Stanford's legendary "Give 'Em the Axe" yell dates back to the 19th century, and so does the bad athletic blood between San Francisco-area neighbors Cal and Stanford.

Vacations for Hawaiian Kings

The Royal Waikoloan Resort on the Big Island of Hawaii
recreates a royal tradition of hospitality

*W*aikoloa, on the Big Island of Hawaii, is where the kings and queens of old Hawaii used to vacation. They knew...the water, the weather, the beach, the hospitality. In old Hawaii, Waikoloa was the best.

Today, that royal tradition has been recreated at the Royal Waikoloan. Here you will discover the true Hawaii, and this is just a sampling of what you might experience.

THE ROYAL LUAU hula is performed by authentic Big Island halau. The music, dance, food and costumes create a picture from the past.

PANIOLO ROUNDUP takes place on what was once part of the largest individually-owned ranch in the U.S., and the steaks are barbecued as the Hawaiian cowboys did and still do it.

THE HUKILAU is a beachfront cook-out, and guests share in the fun of netting the fish. Picture yourself in an outrigger canoe, chasing the catch into the net.

A BACKYARD PARTY gives you the local-style good times of Hawaii today with music, food, arts, and crafts. Some of the best craftspeople on the island stop by.

You will feel the Aloha spirit here, and you will leave fulfilled, knowing you have experienced the true Hawaii.

connection with any football game but at an April 13, 1899, Cal-Stanford baseball game. Stanford went at its "Give 'Em the Axe" cheer with such gusto that a straw man dressed in California's blue and gold was decapitated—with an axe, of course.

Two days later steaming Cal rooters slipped into Palo Alto and swiped the venomous axe, taking it home by ferry and placing it in a bank vault.

For three decades it stayed there—except for one day each spring, when it was brought out for a rally. Stanford, which did the steaming during this long period, made many unsuccessful attempts to retrieve it.

In 1930 when it was rally time, the area press—reporters and photographers—was covering Cal's removal of the prized axe from its vault. When the flashbulbs started popping, though, it was surprise time. The "press" corps was from Stanford; the "flashbulbs" were tear-gas bombs; the axe was recaptured.

In 1933 it officially became the Axe, and it was made the traveling trophy of the teams' annual football game.

Not every hot college football rivalry has a trophy. Not every trophy—and there are almost 60 at stake in football rivalries every year—has as rich a background as the Axe. But there are a lot that come close.

For some reason, the Midwest leads the way in the trophy and rivalry business.

Ironically, the best known football rivalry in the Big Ten—Ohio State vs. Michigan—is not among those that has an official trophy, although far more often than not the prize at stake has been the trophy the Big Ten gives to its champion, along with a Rose Bowl berth.

It is the Michigan-Minnesota game that is played for the Little Brown Jug. And Indiana and Purdue play for the Old Oaken Bucket. In football, those may be the best known trophies.

Each has an interesting history.

Legend says Michigan coach Fielding H. Yost went to Minnesota for the 1903 game with a brown water jug for his team. It was late in Yost's third coaching season.

TWA's Child Care Program.

Because children who travel by themselves should never be alone.

Nowadays it's not unusual for children to travel by themselves.

When these children travel on TWA, parents can relax knowing they're in the right hands with our special "Child Care Program."

Child Care on the Plane.

Every child traveling alone on TWA is not alone for long. When they board the plane, they are assigned to our In-Flight Service Manager until they arrive at their destination.

So if the child is nervous about the flight, worried about making connections, or wants something to eat or drink, the In-Flight Service Manager will be there to help.

Child Care on the Ground.

And those children who must make ground connections will personally be escorted through our connecting hubs at St. Louis and JFK.

TWA has even provided a special child care center, where our staff watches over them as they watch television, read a book from our children's library, or play with one of the many games supplied; juice and soft drinks are available, too.

Child Care in Case of Delays or Cancellations.

If for some reason a TWA flight is delayed or cancelled, one of our staff will remain by the child's side explaining and reassuring. If need be, they call the child's parents. For more details, call TWA or your travel agent.

TWA's Personal Service Commitment.

TWA is determined to bring you the best personal service in the airline industry. So we've assigned an In-Flight Service Manager to every flight to make sure your trip is as smooth as possible.

In addition, our Chairman of the Board has put together a Quality Control Team. A group of 30 very picky people who fly TWA, assessing the service they receive, on a checklist of over 100 service items. They report directly back to him with their comments, good and bad. And if anything needs improvement, it gets improved. Fast.

Because at TWA, great service is a top priority.

His team had played and won 27 games by an average margin of 55 points.

At Minnesota a Gopher team that hadn't lost, either, played the Wolverines to a 6-6 tie. By accident, Michigan went home without the jug, sent word that Yost wanted it back, but got a gruff answer along the lines of, "If he wants it, let him come and get it."

They've been playing for that thing ever since.

The Old Oaken Bucket existed in song 15 years before Chicago alumni groups of Purdue and Indiana decided to establish a trophy and jointly declared: "An old oaken bucket is the most typical trophy of this state, and it should be taken from a well somewhere in Indiana."

The one that was found came from a farm well in extreme southeastern Indiana, and it came with its own reputed history—Confederate raider Gen. John Morgan drank from it on one of his ventures into Indiana.

Other stories behind other rivalry prizes:

The Bell Clapper (Oklahoma and Oklahoma State)—In 1917, after 11 straight losses to Oklahoma, Oklahoma State (then A&M) won a game and joyous Stillwater students rang a prairie schoolhouse bell all night. Not until 1930 did the Aggies win another game in this series. When victory seemed imminent that year, some Sooner fans slipped out early, headed straight for the bell and stole its clapper. It's been the game trophy since 1931.

Floyd of Rosedale (Iowa and Minnesota)—This is a bronzed pig, 15 by 21 inches. More to ease game tensions than to add to them, in 1935 governors of the two states bet a live hog on the game. Iowa lost and handed over the real Floyd of Rosedale, a full brother of Blue Boy of the Will Rogers movie "State Fair." Floyd wasn't handed over to be kept. The receiving governor commissioned Charles Brioscho of St. Paul to make the sculpture that now exists, and in the meantime presumably ate the evidence.

The Shillelagh (Take your pick: Notre Dame-Purdue or Notre Dame-Southern California. There's a shillelagh at stake in each of those.)—The USC shillelagh came from Dublin in 1952, and it has become the only genuine intersectional trophy. The Notre Dame-USC rivalry dates to Knute Rockne, or really to Mrs. Rockne. The story is that Rockne and USC coach Gwynn Wilson were on the rear platform of a Chicago-bound train, discussing the possibility of setting up a game. Rockne decided not to, went back into the train to join his wife, and found out there that Mrs. Wilson had sold Mrs. Rockne on how wonderful Southern California weather was and how hospitable USC was to its visiting teams. Rock capitulated to Mrs. Rock, and the series has been unbroken since 1926.

The Purdue-Notre Dame Shillelagh became that game's trophy in 1957. It was donated by a merchant seaman who brought it from Ireland.

The Victory Bell (Cincinnati and Miami of Ohio)—Since Michigan and Ohio State don't have a trophy, the hottest rivalry prize in the Buckeye State may be the Victory Bell. The bell dates to 1824, when it hung in Miami's Old Main. Early football victories were celebrated at Miami by ringing the bell. Cincinnati fans "borrowed" it to mark victories over Miami. That went on for 40 years, until the bell disappeared in the 1930s and didn't show up again until '46. Then it was put in a wooden framework, decorated with the teams' colors and made an official part of the game.

The Old Oaken Bucket of the Indiana-Purdue rivalry is reputed to have been used by a Confederate general on one of his Northern raids.

The Bayou Bucket (Houston and Rice)—A prize awarded in Louisiana, you guess? No, no. Houston is "The Bayou City," and the city's two Southwest Conference schools play for this bucket. Don't confuse it with The Bayou Classic: Grambling vs. Southern.

The Golden Egg (Mississippi and Mississippi State)—It's been the prize since the rivalry reached a boiling point in 1926, and a joint student body purchase came up with a metallic egg as its football prize.

The Broomhead Trophy (Brown and Rhode Island)—This trophy sounds wackier than it is. Brown and Rhode Island play for a gold-plated football named for William Broomhead, who was a big supporter of both schools.

The Beehive Boot (Brigham Young, Utah, Utah State and Weber State)—The four Utah schools have been playing for the Beehive Boot since 1971. It's a knee-high pioneer boot supposedly worn by a member of the Mormon Battalion, which walked from Omaha to San Diego during the Mexican War. The school with the best record after the four teams have played each other gets the trophy for the year. Ties are broken by a state news media vote.

The Rag (LSU and Tulane)—Since

This is not your father's Oldsmobile.

Cutlass Supreme

We think your Dad would readily agree. We also think he might be right behind you when you go to the showroom. Because this new Cutlass Supreme is the most researched, refined and remarkable car in our history.

Who wouldn't love it? The power comes from a 2.8-liter multiport fuel-injected V6 engine. As for handling, it's remarkably precise. Each wheel boasts a separate suspension system, with MacPherson struts up front, and coil springs in the rear.

On this car, everything looks good for a highly technical reason. A whole new generation of Cutlass watchers will be snapping heads when this beauty whizzes by.

FOR THE BEST DEFENSE AGAINST CANCER, SEE YOUR DOCTOR ONCE A YEAR AND HIM ONCE A WEEK.

He may not look like everybody's idea of a cancer specialist.

But there's strong evidence that your greengrocer has access to cancer protection you won't find in any doctor's office.

Like broccoli. Peaches. Canteloupes. Spinach. And other sources of Vitamin A related to lowering the risk of cancer of the larynx and esophagus. Not to mention sweet potatoes, carrots, pumpkin, winter squash, tomatoes, citrus fruits and brussels sprouts.

Vegetables such as cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi and cauliflower may help reduce the risk of gastrointestinal and respiratory tract cancer.

Fruits and vegetables (and whole grain cereals such as oatmeal, bran and wheat) may help lower the risk of colorectal cancer.

In short, make sure you do what your mother always told you to do. Eat your vegetables.

1940 these Louisiana schools have played for the Rag, a flag split diagonally with half in Tulane colors and half in LSU's. A brawl in the 1939 game brought it into existence. It's a tame version of the game's old prize. By legend, the winning captain in the series' earlier days got to go to the losers' dressing room and cut out the seat of his counterpart's pants.

The Telephone (Iowa State and Missouri)—This one is relatively new. Before the game in 1959, the coaches put on headsets and found that wires were crossed, giving them each a direct line to the opposing team. Northwestern Bell solved that problem by game time and the next year built one of its products into a trophy.

The Commander-in-Chief's Trophy (Army, Navy and Air Force)—The most distinguished trophy of all darned near merits a salute. The team that comes out best in the season's games among Army, Navy and Air Force takes this one home. If there is no clear-cut winner, the trophy—a three-sided, 2 1/2-foot-tall, 170-pound affair with reproductions of the Army mule, Navy goat and Air Force falcon on its sides—stays with the last team to win it.

Finally, it is necessary in any listing of rivalries to include Kansas and Oklahoma. Theirs is the longest uninterrupted series in college football, dating from 1903. They don't play for anything—except an occasional NCAA basketball championship. □

GOING FOR THE BRONZE (TURKEY)

The Bronze Turkey

Chief Caddo

Not all of college football's rivalry fun is limited to Division I-A schools.

Nor are all the legendary rivalries found there. Take Chief Caddo, for instance.

Northwestern Louisiana is in Natchitoches, La., and Stephen F. Austin is in Nacogdoches, Texas. They are just across the border from each other. The towns are supposedly named for the twin sons of a 16th-century Indian chief, so in 1961 the fellow was given special standing. By agreement, the loser of the '61 game was to cut a tree from its campus and the winner would have a trophy carved. Northwestern Louisiana won, and Logansport, La., wood-carver Harold Green went to work for three months and 250 man-hours to create the noble 7-6, 320-pound wooden Indian chief the two Division I-AA teams fight over.

DePauw and Wabash of Division III have played since 1932 for the Monon Bell, and nobody beats those two bitter Indiana rivals for contentiousness. Between games, the losing team has often tried to spirit the trophy away from the unwary victor. It's seldom, however, that they find each other napping anymore.

They're big on such things in Indiana. Ball State (I-A) and Indiana State (I-AA) play for the Blue Key Victory Bell, donated to the game by a Ball State student honorary in 1940. Ball State coach John Magnabasco once promised his team he would ride back home to Muncie from Terre Haute with the big old bell on his lap if they won. The Cardinals did, and Magnabasco sat in the back of a pickup truck on the whole 120-mile trip home, smiling and clanging the bell, and probably freezing a bit. That series has gone modern. The teams now play annually in the Indianapolis Hoosier Dome.

Since 1972 Boston University and Northeastern (I-AA) have played for the Beanpot; since 1931, Carleton and St. Olaf (II) for the Goat; since 1928, Knox and Monmouth (III) for the Bronze Turkey.

Minnesota-Duluth (II) and Wisconsin-Superior (III) have been playing for Gertie the Goose since 1963—even the difference in NCAA divisions hasn't killed the competition. They play each other in a traditional season opener and then get on to divisional strife.

Coast Guard (III) has a couple of neighborhood prizes—the Mug, which it tries to keep away from Norwich (III), and the Shot Glass, the prize when Rensselaer Poly (III) is the opponent.

North Dakota (II) also doubles up, meeting North Dakota State for the Nickel and South Dakota for Sitting Bull. The Sitting Bull trophy is now 35 years old; the Nickel dates back to 1938, or 50 years.

Whether they're between Division I-A or Division III schools, rivalries certainly help to make college football special. □

Sure, you could invest your hard-earned money in commodities.

There are lots of investments out there. But few offer the stability and competitive return of U.S. Savings Bonds.

John J. Creedon, President of Met Life and Chairman of the U.S. Savings Bonds Volunteer Committee.

The money you earn on bonds is hard to beat. If held for only five years, they earn variable market-based interest rates. And it's guaranteed.

Plus, bonds are fully backed by the U.S. Government. So they are one of today's safest investments.

There's more. Savings Bonds are free of state and local income taxes on the interest you earn. You can buy them where you bank or through the payroll savings plan at work. For more information, just call: 1-800-US BONDS.

U.S. Savings Bonds. They're safe. They're high yielding, and they don't need to be fed.

Most people think heart disease happens only in the elderly.

It happens in children as well. Things like rheumatic heart disease and congenital heart defects. Each year, nearly one million Americans of all ages die of heart disease and stroke. And 20,000 of them die from childhood heart diseases.

The American Heart Association is fighting to reduce early death and disability from heart disease and stroke with research, professional and public education, and community service programs.

But more needs to be done.

You can help us save young lives by sending your dollars today to your local Heart Association, listed in your telephone directory.

Put your money where your Heart is.

WORKING ON UNITED WAY DOES MORE THAN GET YOU OUT OF YOUR HOUSE.

IT GETS YOU OUT OF YOURSELF.

Any time of year, United Way can make very good use of whatever time and energy you can spare. We'll work hard together. Because it takes hard work and commitment to keep United Way working efficiently.

But it's worth it.

Just remember: You may lift somebody's spirits. Possibly your own.

United Way

Thanks to you it works.

If you want America to keep its competitive edge, do something about it.

Support America's colleges. Because college is more than a place where young people are preparing for their future. It's where America is preparing for its future.

If our country's going to get smarter, stronger — and more competitive — our colleges and universities simply must become a national priority.

Government. Business. And you. We're all in this together. Because it's our future.

So help America keep its competitive edge with a gift to the college of your choice — and you'll know you've done your part.

Give to the college of your choice.

Nebraska Trophy Winners

JOHNNY RODGERS

1972 Heisman Trophy

One of the most exciting players in the history of college football, Rodgers won the 38th annual Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding collegiate player in 1972. A two-time consensus All-America wingback, Rodgers became the Huskers' first Heisman winner as he outdistanced Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and Husker teammate Rich Glover. The most dangerous player ever to wear the Cornhusker Scarlet and Cream, "Johnny the Jet" threatened to go all the way every time he touched the ball, as he averaged 15 yards per touch during his junior year, which still stands as an NCAA record. He also shares the NCAA record for the most punt returns for touchdowns in a career, seven.

MIKE ROZIER

1983 Heisman Trophy

Rozier capped an outstanding three-year career by becoming the Huskers' second Heisman Trophy winner after a phenomenal senior season that saw him rewrite the Husker rushing and scoring record book. He outdistanced Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young to win the award after piling up a NCAA-record 929 yards on the ground in the Huskers' final four regular-season games. Rozier finished the 1983 season with 2,148 yards, the second highest in NCAA history behind USC's Marcus Allen (2,342 on 403 carries in 1981). However, considering Rozier's NCAA season record of 7.8 yards per carry, he would have amassed 3,148 yards in '83 if he had carried the ball as often as Allen.

Mike Rozier became Nebraska's first NCAA rushing champion.

Johnny Rodgers broke OU's back in the "Game of the Century."

Larry Jacobson
1971 Outland Award

Rich Glover
1972 Outland Award
1972 Lombardi Trophy

LARRY JACOBSON

Nebraska's first Outland winner, Jacobson won the trophy as the defensive left tackle on the Huskers' 1971 national championship team. A Lombardi finalist, the 6-6, 247-pound native of Sioux Falls, S.D., gathered All-America and All-Big Eight honors during his senior campaign. Jacobson also excelled in the classroom and was the top vote-getter on the 1971 Academic All-America team.

RICH GLOVER

A two-time All-American, Glover capped an outstanding senior year by sweeping national honors in 1972, winning both the Outland Award and the Lombardi Trophy. Glover's Outland Award gave Nebraska the distinction of being the first school to win back-to-back Outlands, a feat that would be accomplished again a decade later by Huskers Dave Rimington and Dean Steinkuhler. The 6-1, 234-pound middle guard from Jersey City, N.J., also finished third in the 1972 Heisman balloting behind Husker teammate Johnny Rodgers and Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt.

DAVE RIMINGTON

Possibly the most decorated offensive lineman ever to play college football, Rimington became the first and only player to win back-to-back Outland Awards. As a junior in 1981 Rimington was named Big Eight Player of the Year by both wire services and won his first Outland, setting the stage for his senior year, which he capped by sweeping the 1982 Outland and Lombardi Trophies. A two-time consensus All-America center from Omaha, Neb., Rimington became the second Husker to sweep the lineman awards and his consecutive Outland honors brought Nebraska the distinction of being the only school to win back-to-back Outland Awards twice, as he duplicated Larry Jacobson (1971) and Rich Glover's (1972) feat by himself.

DEAN STEINKUHLER

Nebraska again boasted the nation's top lineman in 1983 as Dean Steinkuhler, a 6-3, 270-pound offensive guard from Burr, Neb., swept national honors by lugging home the Outland and Lombardi Trophies, giving Nebraska an unprecedented three straight Outlands and two straight Lombardis. With Steinkuhler's teammate Mike Rozier winning the Heisman, Nebraska is the only school to win the top three honors in a season, and the Huskers have done it twice, first turning the trick in 1972 when Johnny Rodgers won the Heisman and Rich Glover took home the Outland and Lombardi.

If you don't keep his name alive, who will?

An invitation to place the name of a member of your family who immigrated to America in the only national museum created to honor them.

Whether your ancestors first set foot on American soil at Ellis Island, or entered through another gateway, here is a unique opportunity to show your gratitude. And to present your family with a gift that will be meaningful now and for generations to come.

When you make a $100 tax-deductible contribution to restore Ellis Island, the name you designate will be permanently placed on the newly created American Immigrant Wall of Honor. You can choose the name of an ancestor or just your own family name. And you'll receive an Official Certificate of Registration. To register additional names, there is a minimum gift of $100 for each.

Please send for your registration form today. By acting now you assure that the Ellis Island Immigration Museum will be a place to honor your own heritage, as well as a monument to the great American traditions of freedom, hope and opportunity.

To obtain your registration form for the American Immigrant Wall of Honor, write to: Ellis Island Foundation, P.O. Box ELLIS, New York, N.Y. 10163.

THE TOUCHDOWN CLUB OF NEBRASKA

One of the groups most instrumental in helping the University of Nebraska Athletic Department grow in the field of intercollegiate sports is the Nebraska Touchdown Club.

Contributions from TD Club members have enabled the Cornhuskers to build a fine grant-in-aid program and continued support from the Touchdown Club, and groups like the Husker Achievement Awards, the Extra Point Club, and the Cornhusker Beef Club, will insure that the Nebraska Cornhuskers will always hold a prominent place in the college sports world.

The University of Nebraska Athletic Department salutes the many members of the Touchdown Club and takes this opportunity to say a sincere "Thank You."

Touchdown Club members (as of Aug. 23, 1988) contributing $200 or more are:

Nebraska's Forrest Behm Elected To The College Football Hall of Fame

by Don Bryant

Forrest E. (Forrie) Behm, the University of Nebraska's latest electee to the College Football Hall of Fame, will be honored today in pre-game ceremonies prior to the National Anthem.

Behm, an All-America tackle on the 1940 Nebraska Rose Bowl team, will receive the institutional plaque from Athletic Director Bob Devaney, representing the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame and also a member of the Hall of Fame. Behm, in turn, will present the plaque to Chancellor Martin Massengale, representing the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The plaque will be placed in the South Stadium trophy area, along with the other Cornhusker Hall of Fame awards. Formal induction will take place at the Hall of Fame Banquet at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on Dec. 6.

Eleven Cornhuskers have previously been inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame, five coaches and six players. Hall of Fame players from Nebraska are Guy Chamberlin, Ed Weir, George Sauer, Sam Francis, Clarence Swanson and Bobby Reynolds. Coaches, in addition to Devaney, are Dana X. Bible, Lawrence McC. (Biff) Jones, E. N. Robinson and Fielding Yost.

Forrie Behm's journey to the Football Hall of Fame is one marked with devastating injury, remarkable courage, extreme dedication and family love. As a five-year old, Forrie and a friend started a field fire and he suffered a seriously burned leg. Doctors told his parents that he would never walk on the leg again and even considered amputation. His father, F. E. Behm of the Lincoln Telephone Company, refused to allow the amputation and set about rehabilitating his injured son.

Forrie's bed was placed in the dining room of their home, next to his parents' bedroom, and each day, after sending his wife and other children away from the house so they could not hear his son's screams, the elder Behm wrapped his hands in cotton to manipulate-exercise Forrie's leg.

As Forrie recalls, "There were no pain killers, I had third degree burns from my ankle to my hip, and there were holes in the leg large enough to put your thumb in. No one but my father thought I'd walk again."

Later, Forrie advanced to crutches and a full leg brace. Even after abandoning the crutches and the brace, he did not have full use of his leg. It was not until his freshman year at the University of Nebraska that he could fully bend the leg.

At Lincoln High School he became an excellent student, but managed to make only the sophomore basketball team and became a bench-sitter in football. After graduating in two-and-one-half years, he went to work on construction. But in the fall of 1937, friends encouraged him to try out for the Nebraska football team. However, equipment manager Floyd Bortorff did not have any size 15 shoes and he was forced to buy his own. It wasn't until his sophomore year that the school bought him a pair of shoes.

Behm played three years at right tackle for Nebraska and never missed a game. That mark almost fell in the Rose Bowl game because of a hip injury during practice but he recovered in time to play against the Stanford Indians on New Years Day, 1941.

During his four years at Nebraska, Forrie was a straight "A" student and won many honors, including Junior Class President, Cadet Colonel of ROTC, Innocents Society, and the Field Artillery Association Medal. He was a member of the Student Council, sang in the Cathedral Choir, and worked for tuition, books and clothing money. Following graduation, he received a fellowship to attend the Harvard Business School and helped coach the Harvard junior varsity in the fall of 1941.

During World War II, Behm served in Alaska constructing radio and telephone communications for air bases, prior to being ordered to West Point where he taught English and helped Coach Earl Blaik and former Cornhusker Paul Amen coach in the Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis era.

Leaving the Army as a major in 1946, Behm got a job as a shift foreman at the Corning Glass Works in Corning, N.Y. That started a 39-year career that saw Forrie rise to President of Corning Glass International and become a member of boards of Corning Glass Works, Corning International Corporation, Security New York State, Goulds Pumps and Pittsburgh-Corning.

Forrie is married to the former E. Elizabeth (Betty) Groth of Lincoln and they have four children, Courtney Ann, Douglas, Brian and Gregory, as well as three grandsons.

In 1966, Behm was presented the Distinguished Alumni Award from the Nebraska Alumni Association. He also received an honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from the University and in 1980 he was inducted into the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame.

Role models are much in demand these days and the youth of America would have a difficult time finding a better one than Forrest Behm. No one has ever deserved enshrinement in the College Football Hall of Fame more than the man who was never supposed to walk again.

Hard Hitting Linebacker Just Doing His Job

by Bill Doleman

LeRoy Etienne's senior season at Nebraska could be characterized as a hit and miss situation. And no one knows it more than Etienne himself.

A national television audience was introduced to Etienne in the Husker's season-opening win over Texas A&M when he knocked return man Rod Harris and the Aggies out of the game with a vicious hit on the second half kickoff. Giving further evidence that he is among the hardest hitters on the NU team.

"My main objective is to go out and play hard," Etienne said. "I want to be aggressive and put the pain to someone. That's my job."

Admittedly, though, he said his style of play, "may be my downfall at times and I get to be over aggressive." In fact, it is the "tackle that wasn't" that had made the Husker linebacker more determined than ever.

In Nebraska's 41-28 loss to UCLA, Troy Aikman's two-yard dump pass turned into a 57-yard touchdown when Etienne missed a tackle on Bruin tight end Charles Arbuckle. It was a play that he lived with for two weeks before being able to put it behind him.

"You have to learn from mistakes like that," he said. "It had a big impact on me and it frustrates me. I am just going to have to work harder."

And unfortunately for remaining Nebraska opponents, "I'm definitely going to be more intense."

"I have to be. This is my last year of playing ball here, and I want to go out and do the best possible job I can. You have to go out and play hard so you can contribute to your team."

A three-time letterman, Etienne has made several contributions to the Huskers' success during his career. Known for his punishing style, he led NU with 75 total tackles last season in earning All-Big Eight honors. In addition to his on the field accomplishments, he, along with former Husker star Neil Smith served as pioneers for Husker football in paving the way to Nebraska for promising players from talent-laden Louisiana high schools. Seeing former cajun-prep stars on the NU roster is a source of pride for the New Iberia, La., native. And though it's not etched in stone, the upper corner of Etienne's locker honors—LeRoy Etienne "Louisiana Legend." "I'm the only one from my area to come here, so I guess I'm a legend in my own mind," he laughs.

"I've talked to a lot of guys in Louisiana and told them this is a great place and a great opportunity for exposure, to learn about football and a great opportunity to get a professional career—on or off the field. You can't beat that."

A two-time Louisiana prep defensive player-of-the-year, he was a member of the recruiting class of 1985 that included much-heralded teammates such as Steve Taylor and Broderick Thomas. But during his three-year stay in Lincoln, Etienne has maintained a relatively low profile uncommon for a Husker star.

"Personally, I like it that way," he said. "I'm not too much into the media attention and all that. I just want to do my job and let the people who know the game of football realize talent when they see it. Sooner or later, you'll get the notariety and the respect."

Etienne has earned respect, just ask A&M's Rod Harris and the many others who happened into his path.

"I've had some good solid hits," he said with pride. "I've hit a couple of guys and seen their eyes roll back in their head."

And tell us LeRoy, how do you feel after a good hit?

"It's satisfyin', very satisfyin', he said like a lion with a belly full of zebra.

For all his physical exploits on the football field, however, his biggest hit is with his seven-year-old cousin and biggest fan, Ashley Cyrio. Handicapped, Ashley has served as an inspiration for Etienne who admits to having, "a soft spot for her." While his immediate goal includes pro football, he plans to use his human development degree in the area of special education when his playing days are over.

"I want to get involved in teaching the handicapped," he said. "Ashley has really had a big influence on me working in that area. I want to show kids the positive sides of life so they can make their lives a comfortable as possible."

Quite the change for one of the Huskers' most intimidating defenders. But then again, Etienne said he has learned a lot about himself during his stay in Lincoln.

"I'm very satisfied with my decision (to attend NU)," he said. "I've learned a lot about the game of football, especially the mental aspects. But individually, I feel I've grown as a person and matured. I don't regret coming here whatsoever."

One of NU's most aggressive players, LeRoy Etienne led the Huskers in tackles last season with 74, including a career-high 15 against Oklahoma, en route to earning All-Big Eight honors.

THE DIRECTOR'S CLUB

The Director's Club of the University of Nebraska was formed by the University of Nebraska Foundation to afford proper recognition of those alumni and friends who support the athletic programs of the University at a level above that of other boosters and to encourage others with the capabilities and interest to increase their support. The university athletic department sincerely thanks these contributors.
